SEARCH FOR SLAYERS OF TWO YOUNG GIRLS

Owner of Car Found Near Scene Contends It Was Stolen from Him

Wilkesbarre, Pa., June 3—Search for the slayers of Jennie Monica, 19, and Edith Fonzo, 20, cousins, whose battered bodies were found in a lonely field near Pittston, Pa., yesterday, today centered on efforts to learn the identities of two youths with whom the girls are believed to have spent Memorial Day.

The girls' bodies, strangled and bullet riddled, were found near the wrecked car of Carmel Marranca, 34, of Pittston, who contended the machine had been stolen from in front of his home. Marranca's brother, Samuel, 22, who drove the car the day before the bodies were found, is sought.

Police today checked the list of known acquaintances of the two girls, in an effort to learn if they had been seen often in the company of any particular pair.

The girls had apparently been attacked and then choked to death. Bullet wounds in the bodies indicated shots had been fired at close range.

The car in which they were believed to have been slain, was found nearby, wrecked, with several bullet holes in the sides.

SEEK HATCHET USER

Prominent New York Woman Struck on Head by Stranger

New York, June 3—Detectives searching for the mysterious "hatchet woman" who assailed Mrs. Edith Catlin Phelps, socially prominent, were baffled today in their efforts to establish the motive for the attack.

Mrs. Phelps was struck on the head with a hatchet in the doorway of her home by a smartly-dressed woman about 35 years old, as she delivered a box of flowers. Mrs. Phelps was hit with the blunt end of the hatchet, a light, nickel-steel affair. As she sank into a chair, screaming, the woman struck her again.

Quietly, the mysterious assailant walked out the front door and disappeared. It is believed that an automobile was waiting for her.

Failing to find support for any other theory the police believe the woman was demented.

President Takes Personal Charge of Greeting Plans for Huge Welcome

Washington, June 3 — President Coolidge virtually assumed personal charge today of the plans for the national welcome to Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh upon his arrival here June 11.

A considerable part of today's cabinet meeting was given over to discussing arrangements, and later the president summoned the commissioners of the district to the White House for further conference.

Paris, June 3.—Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh was a boy in short trousers when the World War was being fought, but today he was made an honorary member of the Lafayette Escadrille, one of the most famous air fighting units of the war.

At a luncheon at the International League of Aviators Dr. Edmund L. Gros, founder of the Lafayette Escadrille, presented Lindbergh with a medal making him the only honorary member of the Escadrille.

"When you arrived, I heard a French woman say, 'I think it is the spirit of our son coming back to us,'" said Dr. Gros. "You represent the incarnate spirit of all the fliers who died during the war. Had you been old enough we know that you would

SOME SCRAP BOOK FOR YOUNG FLIER

New York, June 3.—Charlie was curious.

When Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh prepared to hop off from New York to Paris he wondered if the newspapers would notice his modest effort. So he left orders for a clipping bureau to dig up any items the newspapers might print.

Today, with two carloads of newspapers already piled up with an obligation of more than $1,000 for clipping service, Mrs. Evangeline L. Lindbergh, mother of the transatlantic hero, ordered them stopped.

The order was transmitted through Henry Woodhouse, president of the Aerial League of America.

CHIEF ISSUES ANNUAL FIREWORKS STATEMENT

Sale or Use of Pyrotechnics Within City Limits Is Violation

Fireworks are taboo in Marion.

This emphatic statement was issued today by Police Chief James W. Thompson. As in former years neither the sale nor use of fireworks will be permitted within the city's corporate limits.

For several years it has been the ambition of Chief Thompson and other law enforcement officers in other sections of the state to obtain legislation bearing on the sale and use of fireworks throughout the state. This is sought, it has been explained, to make the regulations general.

At present, it is pointed out by Chief Thompson, fireworks may be sold outside the city limits, an activity that is considered unfair to Marion merchants. The fireworks are brought into the city and set off despite police regulations.

In an effort to curb the use of fireworks in the city as July 4 nears Chief Thompson has ordered his men to arrest all persons violating the order.

This is Clarke's first appearance before the public as a candidate for office. He is employed as a painter. He is the first Republican to file as a candidate for a second Ward councilman. Thomas J. Mead, Democrat, now representing the ward as councilman, is a candidate for re-election.

Hostetter Tells Officials Saws in Attempted Jail Delivery Bought in Bucyrus

Eight small hack saws used in an attempt to liberate prisoners at the county jail about a week ago were smuggled into the jail by a man who was out on bond after having been indicted by the grand jury, according to information furnished officers last night by Hobart Hostetter, 17, who is held as a alleged participant in the plot.

Hostetter, questioned by Chief of Police Thompson and Deputy Sheriff George W. Deal, denied any part in delivery of the saws, placing entire responsibility upon the man under indictment.

Identity of the man accused by young Hostetter was not made known today while officers were making an investigation of the youth's charges.

Richards Released

Harold Richards, 16, arrested with Hostetter several days ago as a suspect in the jail delivery plot, was released last night after investigation by officers seemed to establish his innocence.

Charges filed against him in juvenile court have been withdrawn. Young Hostetter is held at the city prison to await hearing before the juvenile judge.

The eight saws were purchased at two hardware stores in Bucyrus on May 23, the day prior to the date when Sheriff Deal frustrated the jail delivery plot, according to Hostetter's account.

Hostetter asserts that he had no knowledge of the purpose of the trip to Bucyrus until he and the man accused by him were returning to Marion. His companion then produced the saws with the remark, "This is why I went to Bucyrus," according to Hostetter's story.

Given to McAdams, Claim

The saws were delivered to Pearl McAdams, a prisoner at the jail under sentence to the Mansfield Reformatory, Hostetter told the officers.

Sheriff Deal and his deputies halted the plot to escape on the night preceding the date set for McAdams' trip to the reformatory. A telephone call from an unidentified man the afternoon of May 24 warned Deal of the plot and that night he and his deputies went to the jail and placed all of the prisoners in solitary confinement.

Needles at Liberty

Pearl McAdams, the man said to have received the saws, was sentenced to the reformatory following his plea of guilty to the charge of carrying concealed weapons.

He was arrested with Raymond Needles in connection with the theft of an automobile from Safety Director William B. Strayer. Needles is now at liberty under bond.

MRS. CHAPLIN'S COUNSEL MOVES FOR SPEEDY TRIAL

Comedian Charges His Young Wife Had Love Affairs with Two Men

Los Angeles, June 3—Counter-charges by Charlie Chaplin that his young wife had love affairs with two men for whom, he said, she neglected her home and babies to attend gay drinking parties, today prompted attorneys for Lita Grey Chaplin to move for a speedy trial of her divorce suit against the film comedian.

With the possibility of a settlement of the Chaplin's marital difficulties out of court apparently blocked by the comedian's cross-suit for divorce, Mrs. Chaplin's counsel indicated her answer would be filed next week, thus paving the way for the trial within 30 days, the earliest prescribed by law.

Meanwhile, the actor's lawyers here were scrutinizing Mrs. Chaplin's deposition, just completed, which is expected to be used as an additional legal weapon for the comedian in the impending court fight.

Chaplin's suit, filed in superior court here, was in the form of a cross-complaint, accompanied by an answer to his wife's divorce action in which he denied her charges of cruelty.

The two men with whom Chaplin alleges his wife associated were not named in the complaint. They were referred to as "a certain young man" and as an "automobile salesman," whom Chaplin "disliked" and of whom he "entirely disapproved."

ANY PRISONER TRANSFER PROMISED OPPOSITION

Warden Elmer Green Not Expecting To Lose Either Leopold or Loeb

Joliet, Ill., June 3—Any attempt to transfer Nathan Leopold, Jr., or Richard Loeb, slayers of Bobbie Franks, to an asylum on the pretext of insanity will be blocked, according to a statement made today by Warden Elmer Green.

The warden's announcement was the aftermath of a 30 minute visit yesterday afternoon at the Stateville prison between Dr. Bernard Glueck, former psychiatrist at Sing Sing prison, and Young Leopold who, with Richard Loeb is serving life imprisonment.

"I'll wager Leopold and Loeb will never get out of prison as long as I am warden, in spite of any kind of mental examinations" was the challenge Warden Green made.

Records at the warden's office show that Leopold has never shown signs of mental disorder.

Deputy Warden Frank Knesa, in charge of the Stateville prison said he was present during the interview between Dr Glueck and Leopold.

"The interview did not take on the aspect of an examination, just sort of a friendly visit," Mr. Knesa said.

Deputy Knesa reported Dr Glueck asked Leopold several questions regarding his health, work and studies.

Dayton, June 3.—Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh who hopped from New York to Paris and international fame, will visit this city to meet Orville Wright, whose first flight Dec. 17, 1903, at Kitty Hawk, N. C., consumed just 59 seconds.

Lindbergh, it was announced by chamber of commerce officials today, will visit Dayton after paying his respects to Washington, D. C., New York, St. Louis and Detroit.

Committees were busy being named today with the purpose of making the new hero's visit as great an event as was the homecoming of Orville and the late Wilbur Wright nearly a quarter of a century ago.

BELIEVE BERLIN GOAL OF PLANE; LEAVES TODAY

Chamberlin and Unnamed Companion To Hop Off for European Point

OFFICIALS CALLED

Levine Refuses To Disclose Objective for Fear of Upset in Plans

Mineola, N. Y., June 3—The Bellanca monoplane, Columbia, piloted by Clarence D. Chamberlin, will hop off from here to some point in Europe, probably Berlin, late this afternoon or tonight, according to plans announced today.

Chamberlin will be accompanied by a navigator whose name was not revealed. The navigator is said to be a former navy aviator.

Charles A. Levine, president of the Columbia Aircraft Corporation which is backing the flight, today was in telephonic communication with the office of the National Aeronautical Association in Washington. Levine asked that officials be sent to Curtiss Field to make an official record of the take-off.

Carl F. Schory, chairman of the contest committee of the association, was expected to leave Washington immediately for the Long Island field.

Report Fund Companion

The Columbia was one of the first planes which prepared to attempt a New York to Paris hop. While the start was delayed through a controversy between Levine and Lloyd Bertaud, original companion aviator named with Chamberlin, Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh came out of the west and achieved his historic transatlantic flight. Bertaud then announced his breaking off of relationship with Levine.

An unconfirmed report was received at the navy department that Lieut. George R. Pond, naval reserve pilot, had been selected to make the trip with Clarence D. Chamberlin.

In order to make the flight, Pond, whose home is in Arlington, Mass., would have to obtain permission from the comandant of the naval district at Boston.

Plans for the take-off within the next 24 hours were dependent upon favorable weather conditions, a representative of Levine pointed out, and upon whether "certain other plans" worked out satisfactorily. The secrecy regarding the proposed destination of the plane was due to the desire to avoid any public disappointment in case subsequent developments might cause a change in plans, it was said.

Says He's Sincere

"I desire to prove our sincerity and the ability of the Columbia by a real accomplishment," Levine stated. "I do not want to make a prediction which might be nullified by conditions beyond our control."

It was reported that the start of the projected flight was contingent to some extent on the time of the arrival here of the National Aeronautical Association representatives.

The reported time of the start ranged from late afternoon to 8 o'clock tonight.

An additional indication of transoceanic preparation was given when a sign-painter entered the Columbia's hangar this afternoon and changed the lettering on the side of the plane. The painter began to obliterate the word "Paris," which was painted on before internal dissension forced a postponement of the ship's flight to France, but members of the Levine organization declined to reveal what name would be put in its place.

Insman Mentioned

Another report indicated that Lt. Jack Iseman, naval reserve flier now on active duty at Far Rockaway, New York, was under consideration as second pilot on the flight. Iseman has been doing some work for Chamberlin at the navy department.

Navy fliers said that the hop to Berlin would be about 3600 miles, about 300 miles longer than Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh's flight to Paris. The longest open water hop would be about 2300 miles, or 200 miles longer than Lindbergh's route.

If the Columbia takes the shortest route to Berlin, it would pass over Glasgow, Scotland, after crossing the Atlantic.

SELECT DETROIT

Chicago, June 3—Detroit has been selected as the 1928 convention city of the northern Baptists, it was reported today.

The committee making the selection will report here in the fall.

GOES TO GOTHAM TO CHECK PLANE

Washington, June 3—Immediately upon receipt of word that the Columbia was to hop off late today or tonight for Europe, Carl F. Schory, chairman of the contest board of the National Aeronautical Association, left for New York to check the plane's instruments and make an official record of the take-off.

Schory took the 11 o'clock train. He will go at once to Curtiss Field after reaching New York.

May Proved Month of Record Rainfall, Memories Recall, Official Data Reveals

FROM a weather standpoint May was an unusual and near-record breaking month, according to the monthly report of Dr. E. H. Raffensperger, official weather observer here.

Not since March 1913 when 12.58 inches of rainfall were recorded has Marion and vicinity experienced such a persistent downpour as in the month just closed. The total precipitation for the month was 7.53 inches.

According to all available records and within the memory of Dr. Raffensperger the rainfall of 2.80 inches in six hours the night of May 10 is a record for that length of time. Greater volumes of rain have fallen during a single day, records show, but the mark set last month is the highest.

18 Days of Rain

Marion experienced but 11 clear days. Eight were partly cloudy and the remainder cloudy. Rainfall was recorded on 18 days.

The highest temperature of the month was recorded on May 22 when the mercury column climbed to 96 degrees, one point higher than the point reached on May 10. The lowest temperature of the month was recorded on the first when the column dropped to 35 degrees.

The highest average temperature was recorded May 22 with a 70 degree mark. Thunderstorms were experienced five times during the month, on May 9, 19, 24, 25 and 30.

The report for the month checked with May reports of former years discloses that unusually chilly weather prevailed during the latter part of the month. This, however, is no record.

SOUTHWESTERN LIMITED WILL CHANGE TABLE

Fastest Passenger Through Here on Big Four Set Back 10 Minutes

The Southwestern Limited, the fastest passenger train operating through Marion over the Big Four will leave this city for Indianapolis and St. Louis at 8:15 a. m. daily, starting next Sunday, according to the new time table issued today, to take effect June 5.

The Limited now leaves Marion at 8:05 a. m. but the change in time here will not effect its schedule of arriving in St. Louis. The crack Big Four train will leave New York 15 minutes later starting Sunday but will arrive in St. Louis at the usual hour, 15 minutes having been cut from its running time. The New York-St. Louis trip is completed in 21 hours flat.

Two Other Changes

Two other changes in time have been announced by the Big Four. Train No 119, now leaving Marion for Indianapolis and St. Louis at 10:57 a. m, will leave this city at 11:09 a. m. under the new time table. The passenger train runs daily.

Train No. 31, bound for Indianapolis and St. Louis, now leaving Marion at 8:33 p. m. will depart from this city at 8:31, starting Sunday.

While no change in time is being made on Train No 3, this train, leaving New York at 11 p m daily, will carry a through sleeping car from that city to Marion.

A slight change in schedule has been effected by the Marion-Lima Transit Co. which operates the buses from Marion to Lima via Kenton.

Beginning today, the 6 o'clock bus which formerly went only to Kenton from Marion each night, will complete the trip to Lima. A new time table went into effect on that line a few weeks ago.

MANY ELEPHANTS IN COMING CIRCUS

We are not positive just what brand of breakfast food, Cheerful Gardner, master elephant trainer with the Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus, used to raise mere babes to such gigantic brutes, but it must have been overly rich in calories. Gardner doesn't divulge any secrets about animal diets, but their present weight is sufficient testimonial that the food served was a muscle and bone builder

Circus enthusiasts of this community will have an opportunity to see the largest Indian elephants in captivity when the Hagenbeck-Wallace circus comes to town for afternoon and night performances on Monday, June 18. Their speed, when you consider their size, will also amaze you, as they seem to have the pep and agility of a kangaroo, and that is some statement.

Several pretty girls, among them the Misses Babe Gardner and Dorothea Johnson work the talented Hagenbeck-Wallace herds.

ANOTHER STADIUM

San Francisco is the latest city to announce plans for a mammoth athletic stadium—a million-dollar structure with a seating capacity of 150,000.

BELMONT PARK

As a result of lavish expenditures during the last few years, Belmont Park, home of the Westchester Racing Association, is now one of the most beautiful racing plants in the world.

There is no speed limit for driving a sewing machine and its driver need never fear collisions.

have been one of the first to offer your life if necessary in France."

Means Much to Him

"This means more to me than anything I have received in Europe," replied Lindbergh, who appeared greatly moved by the honor paid him. "Few things could mean more than this to me."

"I am leaving tomorrow," said Lindbergh, "but it would be weeks or even months before I left if the choice were left to me. I will take the first opportunity to return to France."

President Harmon of the league gave Lindbergh one of the league's medals to present to President Coolidge.

Lindbergh again asked Captain White, naval attache at the American Embassy, to make further efforts to obtain the return of his flying helmet which he lost last week while flying over Paris.

"I'd like to have it before I leave, but if you get it later please send it to me," said Lindbergh who regards this helmet, which he made largely by himself, as a talisman.

When Lindbergh was asked if he postponed his flight from London yesterday because he felt he couldn't make the hop against adverse weather conditions, he replied, "Personally I never had any doubt at all, but remember I was borrowing a plane, and as a guest I couldn't leave until my hosts thought it advisable."

Captain Lindbergh arrived back in Paris today. He landed at Le Bourget Flying Field at 10:02 o'clock after a battle with fog that delayed his flight from London.

Circles Field

Flying at a great height and unescorted by any other plane, Lindbergh arrived over Le Bourget Flying Field shortly before 10 o'clock. He circled over the field several times descending into lower altitude at each spiral and then made a perfect landing.

Attaches of the flying field rushed out to greet him and congratulate him upon his venturesome flight from England.

Lindbergh had left Kenley Airdome, near London, at 6:20 o'clock, but had to descend at Lympne, on the English side of the channel at 6:58 o'clock and was detained there about an hour and 15 minutes until the fog lifted over the water when he again hopped off at 8:13 o'clock. This time he was able to continue on to Le Bourget without further interruption although the air was thick with mist.

Having been disappointed once (when fog prevented Lindbergh from making his flight yesterday) the French did not turn out in such great numbers as had been expected.

In view of the fact that this visit is "unofficial" there were no ceremonies at the flying field after the American arrived.

Lindbergh made a double landing. His machine came down first upon the civil aviators' field, but as it lightly touched the ground Lindbergh decided that he ought to land in military ground as he was flying a British fighting plane, so he took off and flew very low over the intervening ground to the military hangars only 300 yards away.

The American flew in a British Royal Air Force fighting plane that had been placed at his disposal for the trip. He was escorted as far as the channel by British machines, which turned back at that point.

Immediately after Lindbergh's arrival 12 French military airplanes went up and began flying formation stunts in honor of the American.

Lindbergh watched with keen interest the graceful evolutions of the planes above the flying ground noting the skill of the French pilots. It was a high honor for a civilian flyer, but Lindbergh's courage and skill are such that the French hold him equal to any military ace.

Safe from Curious

In the meantime Lindbergh's borrowed plane was being rolled into a military hangar which was immediately locked up so sojeourir hunters could not get at it and damage it.

The American airman entered the hangar and it was there that the formal greetings took place.

The party that welcomed the young flier were Parmely Herrick, son of Myron T. Herrick, American ambassador to France; F. B. Mahoney, president of the Ryan Airlines, builders of "The Spirit of St. Louis"; a few attaches of the American Embassy and some French officials.

An Imperial Airways plane—a passenger carrying machine—from Croydon, just outside of London, landed at Le Bourget five minutes after Lindbergh.

One of the passengers, M. Ehrlich, told an interesting story about the flight.

Tells of Stunts

"We followed Lindbergh from Lympne," said M. Ehrlich, "and we were certainly thrilled and entertained by what we saw. When he got out over the English Channel he began to do 'stunts' for his own amusement. He looped the loop and went through other evolutions whose names I do not know. But once on the French side of the channel Lindbergh made a straight line for Paris and flew at high speed without any more evolutions."

M. Ehrlich said that fog was encountered all the way from England to the French flying field. He said that from Lympne to Le Bourget Lindbergh flew at an average altitude of 3,000 feet.

Elaborate police precautions had been taken to handle a great crowd of men and women but they were not needed. In addition to newspaper reporters and photographers there were only a score or two of civilians, but they made up in enthusiasm what they lacked in numbers.

Lindbergh's baggage, including a hat box and a package, was placed in the American Embassy Rolls Royce and at Paris bearing Lindbergh, Herrick and 10:20 o'clock the car departed for Captain White of the embassy staff Mahoney followed in another car.

MOTHER MAY BE FIRST TO GREET LINDBERGH

Washington, June 3—A fever of excitement gripped the national capital today as officials and citizens began to count the hours until an American youth steps into a limelight usually reserved for presidents, kings and queens.

Capt. Charles Lindbergh, master of the Atlantic, will be accorded not only the highest honors of peacetime but will be paid the enthusiastic homage of a half million plain Americans in a wild jubilee.

While Captain Lindbergh is coming to Washington to meet the president of the United States, his first great thrill will be a mother's embrace, it was indicated today. If Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh, who is deserting her schoolroom in Detroit to meet her famous son, wills, she will be the first to greet him as he steps from the cruiser Memphis here.

The task of sheltering Mrs. Lindbergh from curious crowds will fall to Mrs. Coolidge, whose guest she will be at the temporary White House. Mrs. Lindbergh, it was said, may either board the Memphis down the river, greet her son at the presidential dock in the Washington Navy Yard or join the president and Mrs. Coolidge at Washington Monument where Captain Lindbergh and the president will meet.

Cognizant of criticism which the transfer of Captain Lindbergh's reception from New York to Washington has evoked in some quarters, the cabinet and citizens committees have doubled their efforts to make the welcome the greatest in Washington's history.

MEMPHIS PICKS UP "SPIRIT OF ST. LOUIS"

Southampton, England, June 3—The United States Cruiser Memphis arrived here today from Rotterdam and picked up "The Spirit of St. Louis," the airplane in which Capt. Charles Lindbergh flew across the Atlantic.

The plane was in two crates weighing three tons, one being 47 feet long. It was placed on the after deck with the guns and two small aeroplanes.

The Memphis sailed for Cherbourg at 1:30 o'clock and Captain Lindbergh will go aboard there tomorrow.

Vice Admiral Burrage stated that he expected the Memphis to arrive in Washington at 11 a. m., June 11.

Her System Was Upset 3 Years Before She Got Konjola, States Marion Lady

"I am entirely out of misery for the first time since I had a nervous breakdown three years ago, and I give this new Konjola medicine full credit for restoring my health," said Mrs. Lena Spratt, well-known Marion lady, living at 183 Fairview Avenue, this city, while talking a few days ago with The Konjola Man at the Stump & Sams Pharmacy, 121 South Main Street, Marion, where large crowds are calling daily to find out for themselves about this surprising new medical compound.

"After having the nervous breakdown I was left a health wreck," said Mrs. Spratt. "My stomach was giving me trouble and my kidneys were in a weak, sore condition.

"After a meal I suffered with indigestion. Gas bloating would affect me so that I could hardly breathe, and my heart would flutter and jump. Owing to weak kidneys I was subject to night rising, my back was achy and sore and I had pains thru my hips and limbs. I could never sleep at night, but seemed to be so miserable and nervous that I laid awake for hours at a time. I was greatly troubled with constipation.

"I heard a great deal about Konjola and made a test of this medicine. It seemed to help the second day, and after that I was improving so fast that I couldn't keep from telling everybody about the way I felt. Now I am feeling better than I have in years and every trace of my stomach and kidney trouble is ended. My digestion is good, so that I never have bloating spells or shortness of breath. I have a greater appetite and the constipation trouble is entirely gone. The night rising is ended, because my kidneys are in good condition. My back is free of pains and I sleep good at nights. I am stronger and feel better in every way and the nervousness is gone.

"I think any medicine that gives such relief is wonderful, and I am recommending Konjola to everyone who needs it."

The Konjola Man is at the Stump Pharmacy, (Stump and Sams), 121 South Main Street, Marion, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy. Free samples given.—Adv.

Daily Proverb—"A man can not leave his wisdom and his experience to his heirs."

Our idea of a real local news item at this time would be a case of sunstroke.

Then, too, the reduced-size paper money will more nearly represent its buying power.

The one-time vaunted civilization of China manifestly has become old and worn-out.

Gabriele d'Annunzio, Italian poet, claims to have made 78.91 miles an hour in his new motor boat. Possibly he exercised a little poetic license in his timing.

There's one thing to be said for this spring's weather; it's the most dependable we have ever known. We haven't worried over the possibility of our cistern going dry for weeks and weeks.

When it comes to the matter of displays of marvelous beauty, those of man are commonplace compared with such as that offered by the conjunction of fair Luna and beautiful Venus in the western sky last evening.

It's not so remarkable that the fees of the fifty lawyers engaged in the Gould estate case aggregated $2,703,635. The really amazing phase of the matter is that with half a hundred lawyers engaged in the case there should be $16,000,000 left to distribute among the six heirs.

In view of his reception by King George, Queen Mary and the Prince of Wales, it may be just as well for Captain Lindbergh to dodge Chicago and the Hon. Bill Hale Thompson enroute back to St. Louis.

It would have been mighty cheering to farmers hereabout when they read yesterday that September corn had gone to $1.07¼ the day before, the highest in two years, had there been a prospect that they would have any.

Although two days have passed, a lot of people over in New Jersey haven't yet decided in their own minds whether the shake-up experienced in that state early Wednesday morning was an earthquake or an explosion of hootch, which gives us something of a line on the kick in the hootch the New Jersey people have been drinking.

Lindbergh has not, thus far, felt the attraction of the screen, but it's worth noting that he is not so greatly different from the rest of humanity that he doesn't enjoy writing "a piece for the paper."

We were told yesterday that the president's summer home out in the Black Hills is being "connected up" with the world. And we were innocent enough to credit the statement that he was going away out there to get away from the world.

The captain of the Cunard liner, Transylvania, bound from New York to Antwerp, reports having seen an aeroplane 800 miles off the coast of Ireland, last Monday. That's one thing Lindbergh's marvelous flight let us in for. The air will probably be full of aeroplanes, real or imaginary, from this time on.

The records of the British criminal records office in London show that seventy-six per cent. of all the criminals whose records have been kept therein have been blondes. Wouldn't that jar you? The stage villain has been making up wrong for all time within the memory of man.

Menace in Multiple Motors.

Igor Sikorsky, noted aeroplane designer, his pilot and a mechanic, narrowly escaped death, a day or two ago, when one of the two motors on a new hydroplane being given its first tryout went dead when the plane had attained an altitude of about 900 feet and the machine, forced sideways by the power of the other motor, headed downward and plunged into Flushing bay at a point about 300 feet from land.

Had the plane hit the shore instead of the water, the three occupants probably would have been killed, for as it was the front of the machine and the motors were wrecked and the entire fusilage was damaged. Fortunately the pontoons sustained it at the surface, but even then the three were rescued from the wreckage with difficulty.

Thus we have another illustration of the danger of twin and triple motors set horizontally. If either one of twin motors goes wrong, there is sure to be trouble. In a triple-motor plane, the center motor could die without serious results and this would be true of the going dead of the two outside motors, provided both went wrong at the same time—a very unlikely happening—but should either of the outside motors go wrong, the result would be the same as the dying of one of twin motors.

There may be come obstacle, of course, which is insurmountable, but it's hard for the layman to understand why a machine can not be designed of sufficient height and rigidity to permit of the vertical placing of twin motors, at least, which would permit either to go dead without resultant accident. Until some method is discovered to meet this problem, the use of more than one motor on a heavier-than-air machine is bound to carry a menace.

For Home Consumption Only.

All Mussolini's public utterances are striking. We do not mean that they are striking as specimens of the highest and best in oratory, but rather that there is in all of them some striking announcement, proposal or idea to arouse Italian enthusiasm to high degree, maintain interest in himself and incidentally, although such may not be his purpose, cause worry in the various chancelleries of Europe.

The premier's latest utterance before the Italian chamber of deputies is in no way an exception to the rule. There was nothing new in his reference to the fact that "the new chamber will be elected through the corporative state" or in his reference to the burial of "the falsehood of universal suffrage." There may have been something new in his recital that 1,700 new institutions for the care of maturnity cases had been opened and would be maintained in large part by the bachelor tax, which amounts to 50,000,000 lire annually, but there was nothing particularly startling about that, which may also be said of his recommendation that more saloons be closed, for the movement in that direction has been on for some time, 25,000 having already been closed. As there are still 187,000 left over there, the likelihood that the Italians will lack for liquid refreshment is negligible. His reference to the campaign against the Mafia was old stuff, as it has been in process since he became dictator, but there was news in his announcement that homicides had been reduced from 675 in 1923 to 289 in 1926.

When, however, he spoke of the decreasing birth rate of Italy and held that Italy's present population of 40,000,000 must be increased to 60,000,000 in the next half century and then announced that Italy must have an army of 5,000,000 men, mobile and in full wartime efficiency, he did a bit of saber-rattling which was easily the most striking since his pronouncement on the "coming Italian empire," with which it was in line.

Judging the present by the past, other European governments will construe his declaration for a population of 60,000,000 within half a century and for an army of 5,000,000 men on a wartime footing as an evidence of the Duce's determination to follow the policy of aggression indicated by his "empire" talk. And this construction is the more probable by reason of his question: "What are the present 40,000,000 inhabitants of Italy when compared with the populations of Germany, Russia and France?" But our judgment is that his latest address, like many of its forerunners, was largely for home consumption.

We are not seeking to belittle Mussolini. Nothing is further from our thought. We believe him to be one of the greatest men, and certainly the most striking personality, of both the past and present century. We do not look upon him as a man suffering delusions. Not for a second. He's a rare judge of men, of human nature, particularly of Italian human nature. He knows he occupies a position such as has never been held by man in recent times. He knows that to hold it he must not only keep himself the great central figure of Italy, but also the most striking figure of the world. He knows he must keep the enthusiasm of the Italian people at the highest pitch. He must maintain and play upon the mighty national feeling he has aroused and developed. He knows that any recession means his fall. He must be supreme, even in Italian thought. "My successor has not yet been born," he stated recently. Thus he keeps his permanency before the public. They must bow to his will or they will have to deal with him. He must ever be spectacular to bind them to him. He realizes that he stands above a volcano, but he's a man of great heart and courage, and for the good of Italy and the Italian people, he stands proud and undaunted, but at no time unmindful of the fact that he thus must stand to maintain the place he holds and the power he wields.

In a word, even had Italy today a population of 60,000,000 and an army of 5,000,000 men, it would not mean that Mussolini was going to start a war. It would mean that he would have to utilize some other plan of firing the Italian heart with the enthusiasm which makes possible his great works.

There's a lot to be said for that name, "The Spirit of St. Louis." It is not only a reminder of the French king after whom St. Louis was named, which has been a matter for pleasing comment by the French, but it also brings back to the people of St. Louis fond recollections of that which in the "good old days" made their city famous.

"It is gratifying to know that pedestrians have some traffic rights in Cincinnati as against automobiles and busses," says the Cincinnati Enquirer. We true aristocrats up here feel the same way regarding our rights, but the most of us know too much to try to exorcise them, especially in the uptown business district crossings where electric signals are located.

"Meanest Thief Sought for Taking Roses from Grave" read a headline in a Washington paper, a day or two ago. As mean as any, possibly, but not the meanest. We have too many right here in Marion who steal flowers from graves to justify such an assertion as that in the Washington paper.

Impressed by the splendid gift of their art treasures to Cincinnati by the Tafts, we have concluded to present our rare collection of art objects, which include "The Signing of the Declaration of Independence" and "The First Prayer in Congress," in steel, and two splendiddly old Rogers' groups, to our home town just as soon as a fitting art museum is prepared for their reception.

H. L. Mencken says "the idiotic respect for mere law which was at the bottom of the American people's growing enslavement has been destroyed by prohibition." Frankly, we never recall having come upon an evidence of the "growing enslavement of the American people" lurking about in this vicinity, but if even a tendency toward enslavement ever obtained, it seems to us Mr. Mencken should be grateful toward prohibition under the circumstances, instead of frothing at the mouth on the subject.

THE UNHAPPY HUNTING GROUNDS.

When Pain Develops.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

A lady down in Texas writes me that she has "terrible spells" of agony. There are stabbing pains under the shoulder blades. On lying down there is difficulty in breathing, together with a sensation as if the stomach were drawn in toward the back. The fingernails turn purple at times and there are frequent spells of severe trembling.

I mention this case to show you how difficult it is to give any authoritative opinion regarding a condition so complicated as this. These symptoms might come from a bad heart, a bad liver, gall bladder trouble, or some difficulty with the kidneys.

I fear it is the heart. But when I speak of "fear" it is only because such disturbances are more obstinate and require greater care. They need not prove fatal, but they do require attention.

It is surprising how very ill one can be from the effects of heart attack. But with the proper medication it is quickly controlled and the uncomfortable symptoms disappear.

Your doctor should see you during one of your attacks so that he may know exactly how you are at your worst. This knowledge will guide him in directing the medical treatment.

I am wondering if my correspondent has been a sufferer from malaria in her day. Sometimes this disease, not often met now in the cities, leaves a string of uncomfortable after effects. In any case of chronic disability, if malaria used to be a familiar visitor, it is well to have suitable tests made to see if it is a factor in the present misery.

Chronic constipation is a factor in almost every case of this sort. A diet should be planned which will help to overcome this bad habit. More water to drink, coarse foods, and perhaps a tablespoonful of mineral oil at night or early in the morning, on first rising, will be useful.

The petroleum oil is a mineral and is not absorbed any more than a pebble would be if it were swallowed. It acts by its presence, as a lubricant, and serves merely to hasten the fecal stream.

Here is another suggestion which I believe will be helpful to the Texas lady. No matter what the fundamental cause of her trouble may be, nourishment is important. To this end it will be well to add gelatin to the milk. A scant teaspoonful to a glass will add to the appeal of the milk, it will help to overcome constipation and will promote the well-being of the lady.

My last thought is to have the urine examined. In every chronic ailment, particularly of an obscure nature, it should be determined exactly how the kidneys are acting. A careful examination is important.

Don't take narcotic drugs. Get the best doctor you can find and have him prescribe after going over your case with the greatest care.

Editorial Comment.

A PERTINENT UTTERANCE.

Ambassador Herrick is not a parlor diplomat. This fact clearly was established by him in his ringing Memorial day address at the American military cemetery at Suresnes, France.

Ambassador Herrick has had intimate observation of soviet activities in France. He learned with the French government the valuelessness and treachery of soviet relationships. At Suresnes, while paying tribute to the heroes who had died that real liberty might endure throughout the world, he proclaimed that the ruling powers of Russia were engaged in paid propaganda activities throughout the earth, and the United States would not tolerate the spread of Bolshevism to its shores.

The ambassador's speech is all the more significant—or should be to Senator Borah and his friends, who so ardently continue to urge the "wisdom, justice and necessity" of recognition of the soviet government by the United States—because of the recent action of the British government in kicking all Russian representatives out of England; because of the tragic upheaval in China; because of soviet activities in India and Java, and because of last week's revelations made by a distinguished admiral of the United States navy concerning soviet propaganda and plot in the Philippine islands.

Nor, despite the expostulations and deprecations of Senators Borah, Wheeler and their friends, can it be denied that this treacherous and sinister propaganda is working steadily throughout the United States, with intent to weaken and destroy the entire fabric of the present form of government. Papers and periodicals pour from the press to proclaim the superiority of the present Russian form of government; eloquent pulpiteers apotheosize the proletarian rule and its achievements; women's clubs listen avidly to plausible philosophical emisarries of the soviet, who come to them preaching the glory of the new political dispensation in the land of the former czars; insidious teaching of the new creed promulgated and practiced in Russia creeps into our schools and colleges; our rational and modest military policies—particularly the training of soldiers in colleges and citizen's military training camps—come in for rabid denunciation and much "holy" criticism; articles disguised by philanthropic or religious proposals creep into the columns of the daily press and distil their hidden poison to the injury and corruption of the public thought.

This is a condition, not a theory; and the ambassador to France has done well to give to the evil of the situation a notable public emphasis.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

An American lady weighing twenty stone is charging her husband with cruelty by beating her and dragging her around the room. A beauty parlor would charge her a stiff price for similar services.—London Passing Show.

Sounds Reasonable.

We suppose one reason for the growing popularity of the sundial as a feature of the formal garden is that the ladies of the household might be out there with their wrist watches on and might want to know what time it really was.—Ohio State Journal.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

Miners, stevedores and unskilled laborers average from seven to eight children in their families. Doctors and other professional men average from three to four. Coal miners, for example, average over eight. Bankers under four. To get such figures as these gives the United States department of commerce something to do. After the figures are collected, then what? It would be interesting to hear the comments of posterity, 10,000 years hence, when they dig up all our charts of useless figures.

A little boy was told that he did wrong to ask a lady her age, "because it is not polite."

"I wasn't tryin' to be polite," he said. "I was tryin' to find out."

A newspaper writer calls our attention to the fact that it is this spirit of "tryin' to find out" that is back of all scientific progress. Most of us are ashamed to ask questions. It hurts our pride. If Columbus hadn't been curious about a new route to India, if Newton hadn't been curious to know why an apple fell to the ground when it came loose from the tree, if Benjamin Franklin and Faraday hadn't been curious about the queer force we call electricity, human progress would have been immeasurably delayed.

The smartest men ask the most questions. They put intelligence above pride.

In 1200 A. D. everybody believed that the earth was flat. Get too near the edge and off you went. Now we know it is round. So much for 700 years of progress. What will we know in 700 years more? Shall we know why it is round and where it is taking us? Shall we know what it is all about? Science has tremendous secrets for mankind. Perhaps in this very new year we shall learn some of them. We know little now.

Marco Polo, first great world tourist, was captured by the people of Genoa during a war in Italy. While in prison he wrote a fine book telling about his travels in China. John Bunyan was locked up in prison and wrote, "Pilgrim's Progress." It is a great thing for some people to be locked up. They produce.

Forty per cent. of the people in the United States raise enough food to feed the other sixty per cent. and have a lot left over to ship to other lands. Over in China from eighty to eighty-five per cent. of the Chinese are farmers and yet they barely raise enough food to feed the other fifteen or twenty per cent.

Chinese civilization, as far as a top-cream of scholar goes, is of fine quality. But what a dismal failure it is for all but a handful. The glory of America is the amazing achievement of having made living tolerable and even comfortable for the greater number.

To be sure there is much more in true civilization than industrial and scientific advancement. But without science and industrialism, most of us humans would be in poverty and misery just like the millions of the enslaved classes of the Far East.

Dinner Stories.

It was just a wayside shanty depot along the P. D. Q. R. R. out West. The troupe of wandering actors set their luggage down on the platform to wait until train time.

The villain of the outfit, having nothing else to do, strode over to where the antique model of a station agent was parked.

"I say stranger," he began, "do the express trains ever stop here?"

"Wa-al," was the reply, "they did once for Jesse James."

During a flag day in a London suburb recently, one of the pretty and youthful girl sellers approached a sour-looking gentleman who sat at the wheel of a luxurious car. "Will you buy a flag for the hospital, please?" she asked.

"No thanks," came the surly reply: "I contribute regularly to the hospital."

"Ah," put in the girl sweetly, "but we're collecting money today, not pedestrians."

Pete Wheeler, of Hickory Holler, had ordered four tire covers from a mail-order house. They were sent to him, and a few weeks later the manager of the mail-order house was surprised to find the following letter on his desk:

"Gentlemen: A few weeks ago I ordered four tire covers from you. I put them one, and hadn't drove fifteen miles before the blame things had wore clear out. Now I want some new tire covers or my money back."

A Scot was paying his first visit to the zoo. "An' what may yon creature be?" he asked a keeper who had been feeding the animal that had excited his interest.

"That's an American moose," replied the keeper.

"A moose!" exclaimed the Scot. "Hoots, mon, show me an American rat!"

Today's Events.

Friday, June 3, 1927.

The sixty-second birthday anniversary of King George V was observed today by the British people.

Sixty-five years ago today General Robert E. Lee became commander of the Confederate army before Richmond.

The midshipmen of the United States Naval academy sailed from Annapolis today on a practise cruise to Cuba and the Pacific coast.

Eminent physicians, health experts and public officials from all parts of the Dominion gathered in Ottawa today for the annual convention of the Canadian Tuberculosis association.

The South today honored the memory of Jefferson Davis, born June 3, 1808, who guided the destinies of the Confederate States of America during the four years of the existence of that government.

Vagrant Verse.

SANCTUARY.

God has builded a house with a low lintel,
And in it He has put all manner of things.
Follow the clue through the mazes that lead to His door,
Look in! Look in! See what is there for our finding.
Peace is there like a pearl, and rest and the end of seeking;
Light is there and refreshment. But there shall be more:
There we shall find for our use wide, beautiful wings,
Ecstasy, solitude, space; and for those who have been too lonely,
The love of friends, the warmth of a homely fire.
Oh, never grieve again for the piteous ending
Of loneliness that could not be made to last:
There all bright passing beauty is held forever
Free from the sense of tears—to be loved without regret.
There we shall find at their source music and love and laughter,
Color and subtle fragrance and soft incredible textures.
Be sure we shall find what our weary hearts desire.
If we are tired of light, there shall be velvet darkness,
Falling over long fields, with stars, and a low voice calling,
Calling at last the word we thought would never be spoken.
But we, being hard and foolish and proud and mortal,
Are slow to bend and enter that humble portal.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, June 3—Thoughts while strolling: Faces that pass in the Times square night. Bright, shadowy and blurred. Faces like pumpkins and with azelike sharpness. Eyes that glitter and eyes like moonstone. Mary Eaton and her white dog.

A turbaned Oriental selling pistachio nuts. Voices that burr, drawl and twang. A Du Barry lingerie shop. Jumping-jack hawkers. Overflowing sidewalks. A policeman escorting a man with a trunk on his back across the square. Movie hungry crowds that stand and wait.

Rotisseries and the whiff of singed meat. The sheepish look of those leaving five-minute photograph shops in giggles. Tapping blind men crying: "Pencils, pencils!" A window demonstrator displaying a shaving mirror. A man sings the mad scene from "Lucia" to ballyhoo an auction sale.

Platinum spurs and a studded quirt in a pawnshop window. The Pullman car magnificence of the new yap wagons. Screaming headlines of the 10 o'clock extras. Date Stamper and Joe Laurie, Jr. A Ride-a-wee dog ambulance. Acres of autos creeping to theaters. Six cops to a block.

Souvenir shop sign: "We Carry Jazz Band Derbies." Doormen perspiring in their heavy costumes. Whatever became of Harry Lehr? Sleeps children who should be in bed. Rows of hotel guests sitting scantily attired at open windows. A push cart takes fire.

Night's sullen despair in Bryant park. The jobless stretched out on abandoned newspapers. Blinking at stars in embittered frustration. The old lady in black scatters bread crumbs for the morning sparrows. Blind George listens to the radio in his newsstand hutch.

Flaring acetylene lamps of night-workers, who seem to look upon passersby as drones. The telescope man leans wearily against the library wall. A taxi load of revelers singing: "Mandy Lee." A traffic tower god climbs down from his roost. Soon another day.

A stroll along Fifth avenue after midnight is an adventure in loneliness. Save for the silent gray army of private policemen there is an ironical inertia. Footfalls can be heard blocks away. There is a murky dimness to the usually gay shop windows relieved here and there by thin lights, sprays where window trimmers are creating next day wonders. The other night I saw a flaming red Mephistopheles lurching home from a costume ball. It was like meeting a spangled clown in a country churchyard. For a few seconds my teeth chattered and the hair rose menancingly on my dog's back. Approaching the cathedral one hears the faint coo of pigeons and a short distance the rising and falling throb of the Plaza fountain. Fifth avenue seems a giant whose tired head is slunk between thin, sharp shoulders.

At the corner above the cathedral I talked to a gray uniformed night watch. He had the usual garrulity of the lonely. He liked his work save in unpleasant weather. Four times he had frustrated burglars. Once he had saved a man from suicide by knocking a pistol from his hand. "But chiefly," he said, "I help the young bloods find the keyholes so they won't awaken their families." And he added: "They get home pretty well fried these days."

* * *

Coming down Madison avenue from Ninth street late at night one finds much nocturnal activity. There are the chugging taxis waiting to unload their human cargo at Reuben's sandwich palace, men and women in evening clothes walking there, sidewalk cadgers and the flurry of life around several all night drug stores.

Views of Those in Public Eye.

HERBERT HOOVER.

Herbert Clark Hoover was born at West Branch, Iowa, August 10, 1874. He was appointed secretary of commerce at the beginning of the Harding administration and when President Coolidge took office he was retained in that capacity. Hoover became a national figure during the World war when he served as food administrator on appointment by President Wilson. He was the director of various economic measures in Europe during the armistice period and led in the organization of food supply for the countries of Poland, Germany, Roumania, Austria, Armenia and the Balkan states.

Secretary Hoover says that any engineering problem is possible when money to meet it is at hand. He puts it thus:

"Given the money necessary, there is a solution for every engineering problem, and no matter what the cost of flood control it will not be nearly so much as the loss suffered as a result of this flood, which has devastated so many hundreds of thousands of acres of the most fertile land on earth and rendered hundreds of thousands of good citizens homeless and destitute.

"The Mississippi has been here a long time. It has a flood every spring and sometimes a superflood like this one. We can see it at this moment surging through the crescent of New Orleans.

"Until the coming of white men the Mississippi had 30,000 square miles of basins and the river when flooded spilled over into these basins. Then came the white man and he began to reclaim the fertile lands along the river.

"To do this the early settlers built dikes and the dikes they followed with levees. The system had increased year by year until now we must carry the Mississippi in a trough all the way from Cairo in the north to New Orleans in the south."

tion, all of us chasing Lieut. Russell Maugham, who later became famous as the original 'dawn-to-dusk' flier across the continent. As the enemy, he was supposed to fly below us. When the leader of the pursuit squadron gave the signal we would tear down toward him, motor racing, at a terrific speed. Then, just before we reached him we'd 'zoom' or start a sharp climb to avoid hitting his plane. Since we were going at such a terrific pace we'd climb with considerable swiftness.

Then—Disaster!

"At an elevation of 4,000 feet Lindbergh and Lieut. C. D. MacCalister crashed into each other as they dived for Maugham's plane. They crashed with such force that they locked and climbed for several hundred feet before they fell. Bits of fusilage, struts and canvas floated slowly to the ground, then the plane crashed earthward. The first I knew of the accident was when I saw the planes dash to the ground and burst into flames. That's when an aviator gets scared—when he believes one of his friends is dying in a flaming plane.

"Maybe I didn't feel happy when I saw Lindbergh and MacCalister appear out of a cloud with their parachutes.

"While the two pilots picked themselves up from a ploughed field the other cadets in their planes played about the bonfire.

"Death didn't interest us much. Of course none of us wanted to die, but we didn't sit down and worry about crashing. We we learned the two men were safe we forgot that Death had been hovering over the squadron a few minutes before."

Perhaps this glimpse of the philosophy of a flying cadet explains Lindbergh's apparent indifference to death or danger when he was waiting for favorable weather conditions for his Paris flight. The tragic fate of Nungesser and Coli did not appear to disturb him—he deeply regretted their loss, but the thought never occurred to him that the same fate might overtake him. He had made up his mind to fly to Paris and all else was subservient to that one alluring goal.

Pains That Never Came

Here's glorious news for long suffering womankind! To every woman who periodically has suffered pain. Menstruation need no longer be painful. And it is Science that is speaking!

Specialists have developed a tiny tablet called midol. It's a simple thing, utterly harmless to a gal of fourteen, but it brings relief in five to seven minutes. And is effective twelve hours or longer!

Midol is NOT a narcotic. It has no effect whatever on heart or nervous system. It acts directly on those organs affected by menstruation. They function normally, as they should, but the pain is banished. Complete relief—yes, perfect comfort—follows midol.

Your druggist has Midol for 50 cents in a slim aluminum box to tuck in your purse.

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

With a soft sigh she yielded to his eager arms and sank against him, and she turn her face away when his lips, soft, dewy curves of pure desire, was stifling in its intensity.

After a long moment he lifted his head, gazing into her eyes, star-like because the shadow of their camp had begun to creep back again.

"Are you sorry I did that, Little White Flower?" he asked, a little awed by his great emotion.

For answer her slender arms, bare when the burnouse fell away from them, crept up and encircled his neck.

"I am glad, for had you not kissed me I fear I would never have known your love, not Allal Abdi, the careless youth of your adventures but Selaham Allalabdi, who reigns him."

"And Ben Mansour? He was—?"

"My father; yes," she made reply. "It is a Berber law that no woman may rule any tribe. When I was born my mother, knowing the birth of a girl would grievously wound father, whose heart had been set on a boy, never told him the difference. Father always believed me a boy and mother, to keep up the deception, separated my name, retaining only for herself my girl's name. Is it clear?"

Barry held her close and dropped his cheek across her forehead. There was no fever apparent and her eyes were as clear as mountain tarn.

"It is clear, Little White Flower. Now when we are alone, you and I, let me not a wizard, for at best, as you must know, I am but a an impostor."

"Of a truth I have known it for some time," she answered, stroking his brown with her soft palm. "The words are more strict in demanding the homage due to their calling, while I have not been incensed when others have ignored you or plotted against you. Tell me, then, what shall I call you?"

"To you alone, in all the hills, Beni Selaham, Little White Flower, I want to be—Larry."

She repeated the name softly, getting her tongue familiar with it; then, having mastered it, her arms tightened a little about his neck, her lips coming up to his:

"I love you, Larry," she said, and a little song sprung to life in his heart.

There was no subterfuge about her; only utter frankness and the light of a great truth. She was of the blood of the Berbers, and without the artifices to be found in her sex of the supercivilized countries. To her, it was a great honor to tell this man that she loved him; a greater one, to know that he loved her. Her Berber blood bade her away with false utterance and when she had yielded her lips to his it was the Berber blood's way of promising him all that he desired. She was his as completely as though she had been a slave from the African plains, and he a sherif of the blood. She knew it and he knew it—and his heart was a happy place where song and joy were mingled.

Tenderly he rose, lifting her. She was as light as the wisp of a golden dream, and his arms, made thrice powerful by his love, felt her weight not at all. He carried her into the deeper shadows and made a resting place for her, then returned and picked up their swords.

At the body of the fallen Berber whose sword had wounded Benna he paused and drew from its place beneath his burnouse the death warrant signed by the Marabout of Adrar. This, he fastened with a thorn from a nearby bush, to the Berber's flowing burnouse, then he rejoined Benna in the gloom.

"I have taken steps to lead certain men to believe, when they find these bodies, that they belong to you and I, Little White Flower. From now on, we travel not as wizard and assistant, but as two of the army of the Marabouts. Later, I have a thought, we shall revert to our present roles, but until we cross el-Dhell I have a feeling that it is best to forget our old parts and act well the new ones. Praise Allah, I have a strong arm and somewhat of cunning with the sword. I shall pass, I have no doubt; but you, light of my heart—I fear you are overly slender to be a soldier."

"Then, Larry, travel as a Khalifa, and take me as your slave. In that manner we shall pass, she suggested."

"Truly, you have wit. That, indeed, should solve the problem, although it will ill become one so fair as you, to play the part of a slave. The low-landers are kinder to their slaves than the hill Berbers, so mayhap that will explain why you carry not the scars of a thousand lashmarks across your face."

"And mayhap my wound can be seized upon," she answered. "I became sullen and disobedient, and you chastised me, as was proper and also your right."

His face lighted.

"Excellent, Little White Flower. But I do not want to travel until you again have your strength."

"My wound does not even throb, thanks to your skill, and my head has cleared completely. I can go on whatsoever you choose to lead."

"Then, when the dawn comes, we shall go Benna, my heart's heart," he said tenderly, dropping beside her and drawing her head to his boulder. "Now, sweet flower, sleep."

And after a time she slept again, seeing which he lowered her gently to the grass, then picked up her sword, taking great care to fix it beneath her burnouse in such a way that its presence would not be suspected. It would never do for Benna to pose as a slave, yet carry a sword, unless she were bearing her master's arms for him.

With the dawn they made certain necessary changes in her apparel that would permit her to pass as his slave, then they left the scene of their night's adventures. They still headed south.

From the mountain the road led downward, toward a karia, or unfortified village ruled over by a kaid. Larry, swaggering along with the gait of a khalifa, for he was playing the part of a lieutenant, and followed closely by Benna, who now had no identity but walked with sullen, downcast mein and with dull eyes, allowed Beni Ahmed's long sword to jangle carelessly at his side. Despite his seemingly reckless stride a careful observer would have seen that he made progress slowly. He was not forgetful of Benna's hurts and he was resolved to make the pace as easy as possible, that she might not overheat her blood and thus hold back rapid healing of the wound cross her breast.

He attracted little attention, for once down among the scattered tribal camps in the valley he was accepted as one of their kind by the soldiers, and was passed as such. An occasional ribald shout was hurled toward his slave, but the latter neither looked nor appeared to hear, walking behind Larry with a calm sedateness that betokened her only interest in the future was as it might affect her master. None suspected that she was other than what she represented to be—a white slave from the north of the Atlas.

In the village he found the usual milling hordes gathered about the central portion—a fetid, stinking market place. Carefully he walked through the crowds, his slave immediately at his heels and if, at times, he appeared to jostle unnecessarily those he passed, only himself and the girl behind him knew it was because he was fending off reckless passers-by who otherwise would have jostled Benna. And on such occasions, if a bearded lip curled or an angry voice muttered threateningly, why, Larry's bronzed, muscular right hand fell swiftly to the hilt of his sword and he swore boisterously by the Breath of Allah that if anyone wanted a fight, he would be accommodated.

The breadth of his shoulders and the span of distance from his toes to his low turban effectually stifled any overconfidence would-be opponents might have felt, and save for verbal clashes that waxed heated and sometimes prolonged, he made the traverse of the market place without serious incident.

In the shadow of a low, squat fig tree he paused as the voice of the muezzin, sounding from a minaret called the Faithful to prayer. He heard the singsong intonation clearly:

"Allah akbar! Allah akbar! Come to prayer. There is no God but God and Mohammed is his prophet. Allah tharek famr Sidi! May God bless the life of our lord. Allah akbar!"

Love's Embers

MADGE'S DREAMS

KATIE sniffed reproachfully as I told her that we would better forget all about the men in the shack back of the farm, because Dicky had told me they were not dangerous.

"Dot always vas," she said. "You never tink anything happen till it do. Den you take oop. I tell you dose men shoost like snakes in grass, und you look oudt dey don't bite you. Vot Meester Graham vant? Vill he let Junior go oop play mit dot dog?"

"No, he does not trust them that far, Katie," I returned, "although he says the men would return him to us safely if he did stray that far. But I wish Junior to remain in the yard and orchard, and I shall ask you to watch him while I am gone to the city."

"How long you goin' be gone?" she asked.

"I am not quite sure," I returned, "I have some shopping to do for Junior, so I shall stay with Mrs. Underwood until I get it completed."

"All right, I vess," she replied and went out, while I resumed my pacing of the room, my vanity more upset than I care to acknowledge.

Katie's weird story definitely had established one thing in my mind. Dicky had recognized one of the unpleasant and mysterious neighbors, and he shared with the man patently disguised some prodigious jest which he did not intend to share with me. His statement that Junior was in no danger from the men fitted in with his behavior, but his warning to me concerning Eleanor Lincoln was diametrically opposed to it.

If the red-bearded man was so harmless that we need have no fear for Junior's safety, and also shared with Dicky a secret affording as much mirth as Katie had described, why should he fear that Miss Lincoln would be annoyed by him?

As I ranged uneasily up and down the room I remembered with uncanny distinctness what Dicky had requested of me. He had asked me to cultivate Miss Lincoln's acquaintance, to make the girl feel so much at home at the farmhouse that if she were frightened by the red-bearded man she would rush to us as if to a sanctuary.

Was it possible that Dicky, obsessed by his design to obtain the girl as a model for one of the characters in a historical novel he was to illustrate, was deliberately trading upon my generosity? With a little shudder, I stopped my pacing and began to disrobe, determined to banish all troublesome thoughts.

It was a long time before I went to sleep, even though I tried every means in my power to induce slumber. I counted sheep, said the multiplication table backwards and forward and recited to myself all the poems I knew, but it was long past midnight before I closed my eyes. And even then I was not free from the worries which had perplexed my waking hours.

Through my dreams stalked the figures of the red-bearded man of whose conversation with Dicky Katie had given me so vivid a description. Fantastically Dicky trailed him, forever shouting the phrase I had heard from Katie as coming from his lips:

"Who touches a hair of that red head?"

Then the figures melted away and changed to that of Philip Veritzen, tall, stately, always with a cynical smile upon his lips as he regarded me. I dreamed that to every suggestion of mine he returned a disapproving comment until in despair I asked him:

"What do you want then?"

In my dream I regretted the question, for I saw Mr. Veritzen lean toward me, his face changed into tenderness, and ask me significantly:

"Can't you guess?"

The sounding of my alarm clock released me from the thraldom of my dreams. I was glad, indeed, to remember that I could snatch a nap upon the car chair of the early train.

Warns Middle-Aged Women To Watch These Danger Signs

Thousands of women at the changing time of life are in serious danger—because of poisonous waste matter accumulating in the system, polluting the blood stream and overworking the heart and kidneys, often resulting in chronic hepatic torpidity, gall bladder inflammation or even gall stones.

The symptoms—danger signs—that should be closely watched are dizziness, headaches, shortness of breath, gas in stomach and bowels, pressure or sharp pains in right side that often shoot through to the back, coated tongue, bad breath, lack of ambition, weakness, nervousness, and nights of restless misery.

Failure to heed these warning signs" in time may mean months or even years of miserable ill health and perhaps a dangerous surgical operation!

Everyone near or past middle life should guard against hepatic torpidity or any form of gall bladder trouble. And in the opinion of the writer one of the best things in the world for conditions of this kind is the inexpensive home use of Klar-Ko tablets, which Bradley Drug Store or any other good druggist supply on a binding guarantee to refund their cost, if genuinely beneficial results are not obtained inside of a week! "Klar-Ko" tablets have brought new life and health to hundreds and they must positively do the same for you or their use will not cost you a penny. Try them today.—Adv.

HOW MRS. WEAVER WAS HELPED

By Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

As Mrs. Weaver herself says, "I was never very strong." This is a mild statement describing her condition, for, according to her letters, she was subjected to any small amount of ill health. Fortunately, her sister was familiar with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and begged Mrs. Weaver to try it. "After three or four weeks," writes Mrs. Weaver, "I felt a great difference in myself. I would go to bed and sleep sound, and although I could not do very much work, I seemed stronger. I kept on taking it and now I am well and strong, do my work and take care of three children. I sure do tell my friends about your wonderful medicine, and I will answer any letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Lawrence Weaver, East Smithfield St., Mt. Pleasant, Pa.

If you know that thousands of women suffering from troubles similar to those you are enduring had improved their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, wouldn't you think it was worth a trial?

Many Flood Schemes Pour In On Engineer Officers

Control Plans Sending Workers to Higher Spots as They Rush in

BY CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, June 3—Mississippi Valley flood control ideas are pouring in on the government in a tide not much less than that of the latest flood itself.

When Major General Jadwin gets back from the stricken daitrict to his headquarters, as chief of the army engineers, he'll find his office swamped by them.

Brigadier General Deakyne of the rivers and harbors board is up to his neck in a similar inundation.

Secretray Hoover's suite at the commerce department is fairly drowned out with suggestions.

The weather bureau is getting plenty of the overflow.

It will be weeks before the last dotty scheme has been drained off into its appropriate wastebasket.

OF course the engineers and others like to get really practical hints. But some they've received (say about 99 and a fraction per cent) hardly promise to work out, put to the test.

For instance, one proposal calls for a lot of trap doors, "to let the water out."

Obviously this too is vague. Let it out where? The engineers can't figure out whether a double-deck river is meant, or a conduit to carry off the surplus, or what.

ANOTHER man favors powerful pumps to drive the floods into the Gulf of Mexico at a swifter lick. If they don't go on downstream fast enough to make room for a rising river behind, he urges, give 'em a shove.

As an alternative to a push from the rear, another engineer argues for suction—the principle of the tractor in preference to the propeller.

A fourth program contemplates turning the Mississippi's big tributaries, like the Missouri and the Ohio, more directly to the southward, so as to make them empty into the Gulf through mouths of their own, instead of joining the Father of Waters. Expensive, yes!—but think what it would save in flood damages.

Scouring out the Gulf has an advocate. He believes it could be done with compressed air. Simply blow the sand and sediment out of the Gulf's bed into the Atlantic, in a series of gigantic puffs, as you'd blow dust off the piano top by lung power.

QUITE a few authorities hold that the situation would be improved if farmers would plow lengthwise of the river valleys an 'round and 'round the hills rather than crosswise of the valleys and straight up and down the hills, so as to hold the water in the furrows instead of letting it escape so fast.

The government engineers, by the way, don't regard this as such a bughouse notion. They say it might not stop floods but it would help.

However, they aren't very hopeful that farmers in regions which aren't subject to floods, and consequently don't care one way or the other, ever can be prevailed on to adopt that method of plowing if it doesn't suit their convenience.

That's where they get a useful tip from some of their volunteer advisors, who want a law passed penalizing any other kind of plowing, with fines and imprisonment.

AT that there are government engineers who predict that any number of the anti-flood plans they expect to come up in congress next winter will be fully as weird as most of those they're having dumped on them now.

BELL APPOINTED

Youngstown Republican Named on Board of Accounting

Columbus, June 3—Appointment by Gov. Vic Donahey of Roy T. Bell, Youngstown, Republican, as a member of the state board of accountancy was announced today. Bell succeeds Col. L. W. Blyth, Cleveland, also a Republican. Bell's terms ends in May, 1930.

The governor, also, reappointed E. S. Thomas, Cincinnati, Democrat, as a member of this board for the term ending in May, 1929.

CLIMAX MAN VICTOR IN HEARING IN MANSFIELD

L. E. Myers, local attorney, was in Mansfield yesterday representing Harry A. Summers of Climax, Morrow County, in two actions brought against him in a justice of the peace court as the result of an automobile collision which occurred near Mansfield on May 17.

Summers won out in both hearings. W. J. Williams of Mansfield, owner of a Ford car with which the Summers machine collided, sued Summers for $150 damages and also caused his arrest in the charge of driving while intoxicated.

Williams' damage claim was denied and Summers was acquitted on the intoxication charge, the sheriff of Richland county testifying that he was not under the influence of liquor when the accident occurred.

The hearings were held in the court of Justice Sowash.

If Youth But Knew

BY MARCUS LOEW,
Motion Picture Magnate

RULES for getting ahead in life have been spoken and printed often. As a matter of fact, rules mean nothing to the man who really is determined to get ahead, except that he first learns the rules and then disregards them to suit his own purpose.

Rules the right principled man never disregards, however, are the rules of gentility—a much misunderstood word. He uses no trick to disarm a friend; he uses no legal device to escape from a moral human obligation.

A man who gets ahead in the world works a bit harder than the next chap. It is all right for him to watch the clock to get out to play golf because that is important for him that day. But he never watches the clock when he has serious work in hand. That is why he is able to play golf on the day he is planning to play golf.

A deal of nonsense has been written about methods of success. My idea is that success results from driving ahead.

I would say that what a man needs is courage, honesty and a capacity for work.

I think also that a great woman is back of most successes of life—a loving mother, a devoted wife, or a helpful sister.

The family is a tremendous entity and cannot be overlooked. One's friends may be considered as members of one's family, because when one is true to members of one's family and to one's friends, they will be true in return.

Faith and trust and hard work run the world.

Mothers and children help it run more cheerfully.

I would say that if anyone wishes to make a success of life that the best plan for him is to take his coat off and go to work.

And I would say another thing: that a man may gamble prodigiously—not on horses, or on cards, but on himself and his own judgment. It is a good thing to bet on yourself in a race, because you are going to try mighty hard to win, and no one else knows your own capacities as well as you do. That goes without saying.

I would say in closing that youth never can know. The best way to teach youth is to be square, to work hard when it is working time, and to play hard when it is playing time.

Be loyal to one's best self perhaps is as good a motto as any.

Following three weeks of indecisive action the armies of the three governments of China are again moving toward battle with Peking, the capital city, as the objective. Chang Tso Lin, chief of the Northern armies, and defender of the city, has been reported defeated at Chengchow on the south bank of the Huang-Ho or Yellow river by the Cantonese forces moving out of Hankow under Feng Yu-hsiang. Chiang Kai-shek, former Cantonese commander and now leader of the moderate government at Nanking, has mustered his forces and is said to have won important victories over the Northerners in the province of Kiangsu. The situation now resembles a triangle with Peking as the apex and the Cantonese and Moderates moving north for the coveted prize, the capital city. The Moderate leader faces the problem of watching the Cantonese on his left in addition to pushing north against the retreating forces of Chang Tso Lin. Insets on the map show the three leaders.

Marion School Activities Are Brought to Close With Annual Class Day Event

Graduating Class Conducts Yearly Program at Chautauqua Pavilion; Prin. K. H. Marshall Reads List of Honor Students in Senior Group

Informal school activities for the year were brought to a close yesterday afternoon with the annual Class Day exercises conducted by the graduating class of Harding High School, before a large audience at Chautauqua Pavilion, Garfield Park.

Featuring the class day program was the reading, by K. H. Marshall principal of the high school, of the list of honor graduates, which this year totaled 133 in a class of 239. Interest also centers on the presentation of a medal by the Daughters of the American Revolution to the student receiving the highest grades in American History and Civics for the year. The award, this year, was presented Joseph Rinnert, whose average was 96.23 for the two semesters, by Miss Emma Thompson, regent of the Captain William Headrick Chapter, D. A. R.

Honor Graduates

Honor students included those students whose grades averaged 90 or above for four years' work as a high school student here. The list included Gladys Ream, honor student who graduates in the classical course with an average of 96.61; Lucile Hunt, classical, 95; Elma Rubins, classical, 94.99; Dorothea Robinson, classical, 94.41; Martha Linscott, classical, 94.31; Laura Monnett, general, 93.94; Ruth Henderson, classical, 93.89; Elizabeth Carl, classical, 93.47; Raymond Romine, commercial, 93.27; Gladys Small, general, 93.25; Marion Holland, general, 93; Clara Gillen, classical, 92.55; Jean DeWolfe, classical, 92.41; Rosanna Crow, classical, 92.05; Melvin Minshall, scientific, 91.96; Ruth Gilbaugh, classical, 91.70; Delbert Smith, general, 91.64; Marian Rife, scientific, 91.62; Bonita Doyle, classical, 91.45; Mary Snyder, classical, 91.33; Dale Brunner, scientific, 91.2; Charlotte Kramer, classical, 90.9; Joseph Rinnert, classical, 90.68; William Lee, scientific, 90.67; Madeline Cutarelli, classical, 90.61; Myrtle Gandert, classical, 90.61; Mary Alice Neal, classical, 90.42; Delmas Reading, scientific, 90.3; Virginia Wilson, general, 90.3; Edna Surface, one of youngest girls in the senior class, being only 16 years old, scientific 90.24; George Gretser, classical 90.13; Hallie Houck, general, 90.02.

Honorable Mention

Honorable mention was made of Esther Brown's average of 93.3 in the general course, as she had not completed the four year's work in Harding High, but had begun her high school studies elsewhere.

To the accompaniment of a march played by the Harding High School orchestra, the seniors, in grey caps and gowns, filed into the auditorium and remained standing in the center section during the singing of the class song, with words by Marian Rife, and music by Kathleen Beicher and Clara Gillen, members of the class. Miss Beicher and Viola and Lavona Peacock led the singing.

The class motto, "Not Evening but Dawn" was displayed on a satin banner of gold and yellow, senior class colors, by a senior boy and girl as the class entered. The class flower is a golden rose.

President Speaks

Joseph Rinnert, president of the senior class, opened the program with an address in which he admonished his classmates to "so live to make the world a better place to lead a life of service," thus repaying first of all their parents, taxpayers, the board of education and instructors for their part in enabling the graduates to make the most of their opportunities while in school. In closing he mentioned two rules for success: first, determination to win, and second, faith in God.

Gives Response

Edward Houghton, president of the junior class, who responded, congratulated the graduates in behalf of his class members, saying that during their work as seniors, they would look to previous successes of the class of '27 for inspiration and would strive to carry on the traditions and ideals of Harding High.

Elizabeth Morgan, representing the tired students of Harding High School seeking inspiration for their class history, prophecy and will, fell asleep at a desk arranged on the platform, and Miss Virginia Smith, class historian, attired in a flowing white robe, was introduced by George Gretser as Father Time, and read the class history representing the class as successful tribesmen conquerors of many other tribes and blessed with many talents by the various Gods and Goddesses.

Class Will

The class will, written by Clyde Morrison, Jean DeWolfe and Paul Roller, bequeathing many of the prized possessions of the senior class to classes to come as well as to individuals of those classes, was read by Miss DeWolfe, who wore a robe similar to the one worn by Miss Smith.

The class prophecy, humorous predictions of the fate of the various members of the class, written by Charlotte Kramer, George Gretser, Elizabeth Morgan, Marian Rife and Virginia Wilson, was read by Miss Wilson.

The program also comprised three beautiful musical numbers, "Tarantella" by Heller, a piano duet played by Clara Gillen and Charlotte Kramer, "Indian Dawn" by Zamecnik, dramatically sung as a duet by Lavona and Viola Peacock, and a marimba solo, "Mocking Bird Fantasie" by Scribbe, played by Thelma Hordes, a graduate also of the class.

Paul Dowler and William Hammer were heard in a violin duet, "Love and Flowers" by Aldrich. The program was brought to a close with the singing in unison of the high school song and a short number by the orchestra.

TO ELIMINATE HARDING TOWER GRADE CROSSING

Galion Motorists Pleased by Recent Announcement of State Highway Bureau

Galion, June 3—Galion and Mansfield motorists are much pleased by the announcement made recently by State Highway Director G. F. Schlesinger that the dangerous Erie grade crossing at Harding tower eight miles east of this city will be eliminated and replaced by an underpass. The matter has been discussed for several years and plans for the changing of the crossing have caused a great deal of controversy. The suggested method of elimination as announced by officials now, has met with the approval of county authorities and preliminary work is to be started at once.

Plans are in charge of J. B Busby, chief engineer of the bureau of bridges, and although actual construction work cannot be started for some time the process of draining and grading will be well under way in a few weeks

Specifications which are still in the formative state will soon be passed upon by state commissioners. The plans will include the large and handsomely built bridge with wide roadway and sidewalks beneath. The possible extension of Mansfield suburbs make the latter item advisable.

With the construction of the underpass the last grade crossing on the Harding highway between Galion and Mansfield will be eliminated.

STRAY GERMAN POLICE DOG TRAFFIC VICTIM

Canine Struck by Auto at Bellefontaine-av and Cherry-st

A speeding car with blinding headlights—a stray, bewildered German police dog—a dull thud as metal and flesh came into violent contact—a few pain-racked howls, then silence and another pet was added to the list of animal traffic victims.

This tragedy was enacted last mid night at the intersection of Cherry-st and Bellefontaine-av.

Today B. F. Shipley, 341 Bellefontaine-av, was seeking the owner of the dog, which pulled its broken body onto his front porch after the accident last night and died within a few minutes. Around the neck of the animal was a leather collar with a tag bearing the number 3,350.

According to Mr. Shipley he was awakened last night by the squeaking of brakes on the machine which caused the animal's death. An instant after he was awakened he heard the dog set up a howl.

Going to the front door of his home he saw the wounded animal drag its body onto his front porch where it died within a few minutes.

The driver of the car never stopped, Mr. Shipley said.

Reports from more than 200 official weather observers located at stated sections in the 16 states are used in putting out the bulletins which are sent to grain men in all of the localities listed.

3,000 ENROLLED FOR CITY GARBAGE SERVICE

Average of 20 Applications Being Received Daily, Department Records Show

Growing popularity of Marion's municipal garbage and rubbish collection department is indicated in the announcement that 3,000 customers have signed for or are using the service and an average of 20 new applications are being received daily. This is the largest number enrolled for the service since it was established here under the direction of Service Director O. A. Benedict.

Value of the department from a sanitary and city beautification viewpoint is emphasized in the report of survey.

In addition to caring for the garbage collection this department, without extra charge, carts away at even intervals all ash and rubbish collections, thereby eliminating the unsightly heaps of ashes which heretofore dotted the rear alleys and back lots of homes throughout the city.

KENTUCKY CLOUDBURST DEATH TOLL NOW 46

Dewey N. Bohyer To Be Harding High Grid Mentor

FIRST SHOVEL CONTEST SATURDAY

SPORT SAUCE

BY EDDIE SCHOENLEB

WHAT'S become of the proposed Junior recreational or baseball league?

A few weeks ago, when Marion had its first touch of warm weather and the commission held its first meeting, a league composed of Juniors was suggested and discussed. A meeting of the Junior leaders was called a few days later but only a few showed any interest.

As a result of the failure of the meeting, F. O. Rudolph, secretary of the commission, suggested that the matter be dropped until school was dismissed.

School is out but not a word has been heard about the league in Y. M. C. A. circles, however the majority of the boys may be found. The Juniors cried for a league during the first of the season but either interest is lagging or they have forgotten the matter entirely.

Interest of boys of high school age in recreational ball was shown during the high school league season. The teams were always on hand and rearin' to go. But it is a significant fact that Dewey Bohyer, who was in charge of the contests, did not schedule any of the games for Friday night or Saturday.

Why?

Because it is likely that he would have had one tough time getting all players to report. Only the most enthusiastic youth would show up on a Saturday to play in a high school recreational ball league. It would spoil the "holiday" for most of them and rather than have anything like that happen, they would ignore the games. But while they are all held together in school, the proposition is easy.

Another thing that is likely to hinder the forming of a Junior League and one that probably has not been considered by those planning the loop, is the holding of Y. M. C. A. and Boy Scout camps during the summer months. A number of youths will attend each camp and their absence would necessarily disrupt various teams during that period.

THE penalty inflicted upon teams using ineligible players has fallen upon one recreational ball club here so far this season. The commission has ruled that all of the Epworth Senior games played to date be forfeited as the result of the breaking of the eligibility rule.

The commission's action is expected to bring in more protests from Sunday School league teams and those who are playing with ineligible players are also expected to "fire" them until the storm is over.

The Sunday School leagues are organized to give those who attend Sunday School a chance to play and the commission is resolved to strictly uphold the by-laws and constitution.

It is known that one team in the Industrial League is using a player who is not eligible for a position but that club is said to have announced to a representative of the commission that without the aid of the ineligible man, it would not even have nine men.

Wouldn't it be better to play with eight men and take a chance on getting credit for the game if it did win than to play with the ninth man ineligible and know that the game is getting it nowhere in the league standing?

And, again, the matter of ineligibility has so often been discussed that the manager of any team should look after that end of the program before even entering the outfit in a league.

No one talks like an elocutionist does; but some beautiful word effects could be got (no, not gotten) if it were done.

LA COSTE WINS

Will Probably Face Tilden in French Tennis Finals Next Week

St. Cloud, France, June 3—Rene La Coste today won his way into the finals of the French hard court championships by defeating Spence, the South African star, 6-1, 6-3, 6-2, in the semi-finals.

La Coste will meet the winner of the Tilden-Cochet match in the finals, and the experts predict a Tilden-La Coste match with the American making a great effort to win the French title and thus recoup some of the glory he lost last summer when La Coste won the American title.

ROBBINS-MYERS TEAM TO MEET MARION OUTFIT

Springfield Nine One of Best Industrial Teams in Ohio

EQUIPPED with practically the same lineup used in the semi-finals of the National Industrial Baseball Tournament at Philadelphia last season, the Robbins & Myers Co. nine of Springfield, will invade the Marion Steam Shovel athletic field, Uncapher-av, at 3 o'clock, Saturday afternoon, for a battle with the Shovel team.

It will be the opening game of the season for the local outfit but the visitors have already won eight games and lost none this year. Their battery will be Tracy and Brannigan, the pair that has won six of the eight contests this season.

Opening Festivities

An opening program has been arranged with the Steam Shovel band taking part and other festivities being scheduled. Here are the tentative lineups, four pitchers being named on each team:

Springfield	Pos.	Marion
Tracy	p	J. Rife
Lucas	p	Colegrove
Cisco	p	Gassaway
Hindes	p	Gerrin
Brannigan	c	Anderson
Brannigan	1b	Conroy
Snyder	2b	Bacon
Payne	3b	Dutton
Gilmartin	ss	Rizor
Adams	lf	Ward
Maxton	cf	Price, Rodgers
Kinsler	rf	Higgins

The visiting first baseman is considered almost ready for the big leagues but his age is against him. He is only 17. A "Babe Ruth" also is in the visiting lineup. Frank Kinsler in right field has batted .450 for the games this season, in addition to poling out a number of home runs.

Tracy, who will likely start on the mound is from the Three I League. Brannigan, catcher, comes from the Capitol City League.

The Marion lineup explains itself. It is not yet known who will start on the mound for the Shovel but all those mentioned for that position are considered excellent twirlers.

HELEN WILLS ENTERS LONDON SEMI-FINALS

London, June 3—Miss Helen Wills entered the finals of the London women's tennis championships today when she defeated Mrs. Beamish, English star, 1-4, 6-3, in the semi-finals. Miss Wills will meet either Mrs. Milla Mallory or Miss Elizabeth Ryan in the finals.

BOUT IN CHICAGO?

New York, June 3 — The proposed heavyweight championship bout between Gene Tunney and Jack Sharkey in September may be held at Grant Park, Chicago. Before leaving for Boston after a conference with promoter Tex Rickard, Johnny Buckley, Sharkey's manager, said Rickard was considering the Windy City site because of the possibilities of a huge gate there.

Marion-Bucyrus 18-Mile Relay Race to Get Under Way Here Early Saturday

Thirty-Eight Youths, Each Running One-Half Mile, Will Participate in Annual Event Between Two Cities; Interest Shown

WITH George Stafford, Gerald Zimmer, Edward Martin and Hugh Shultz running the last four laps, the second annual Marion-Bucyrus 18-mile relay race will get under way at the Marion County courthouse here at 10:30, Saturday morning.

The runners will carry a message from Mayor Earl M. Hazen of this city, to Mayor Arthur Schuler of Bucyrus. The Bucyrus official will be the judge at the finish of the race at the Crawford County courthouse, Bucyrus.

It is expected that the run will be completed before 12 o'clock.

Hildebrandt Starter

George Hildebrandt will act as starter here and will also act in conjunction with Earl Harden of Bucyrus, as judge of the race during its progress over the Marion-Bucyrus-rd.

Bud Lewis will be the lead-off man for Marion, running the first half-mile and giving the message to Walter Merchant, who will in turn hand it over to Edward Hatchen a half-mile later. Other Marion runners, performing in the order named, are as follows:

Jones Runs Twice

Only one man will run two of the half-mile laps at different intervals. Marvin Jones, who placed third in the half-mile race at the Delaware meet a few weeks ago, will run fourth and sixteenth. He is one of the best half-milers ever developed at Harding High.

Last year, the Marion team lost to Bucyrus when several of the local runners paced the half in more than three and a half minutes, holding down those who made record time during their share of the race. This season, however, Marion hopes to have better luck.

Bucyrus Athletes

Among the Bucyrus runners will be well-known high school athletes, including Monnette, Kish, McKinley, Porter and others.

The two teams will be treated to lunch and given entertainment during the afternoon at Bucyrus, returning to this city about 5 o'clock, according to present arrangements. Several of the youths who will participate will run only the first laps and will return to Marion where they are employed on Saturdays.

Much enthusiasm and excitement was shown among the runners today as they prepared for the gruelling test. The race will be run, rain or shine.

Succeeds Paul Sprout as Football Coach; Compton May Return Next Season

Sprout To Leave High School and Coaching Work To Engage in Another Profession; Bohyer and Compton To Aid One Another in Athletics

DEWEY N. BOHYER, teacher and assistant coach at Harding High during the last year, will succeed Paul V. Sprout as football coach of the local high school next season.

This announcement was confirmed today by the two coaches.

It was also stated that Allen "Baldy" Compton, basketball coach at Harding High, would return next season and aid Coach Bohyer in football while the latter would act as assistant in basketball. No additional coaches will be engaged, according to report.

Bohyer came here last year from London, O., where he was engaged in athletic work for four years. He is a graduate of Ohio Wesleyan and has had training under Athletic Director George W. Gauthier and Van Alstyne. He also has attended the coaching school conducted by Dr. Meanwell of Wisconsin and Coach Knute Rockne of Notre Dame. During the summer months, Bohyer plans to attend the coaching school conducted at Superior, Wis., by Glen S. Warner, noted mentor of Leland Stanford University, and Forest C. Allen.

Coach Bohyer assisted Sprout and Compton last year and is familiar with those who took part in athletics here during that period.

Although Compton has not stated definitely that he will return next season it is understood that he expects to again be with Harding High.

Coach Sprout will leave high school and coaching work entirely. He leaves Monday for Dayton where he will engage in another profession.

Here Four Years

He came here in the fall of 1923 after coaching a year at Chillicothe. He is a graduate of Otterbein College.

During his four years at Harding High, Coach Sprout developed teams that won 13 and tied two out of 16 games played in the North Central Ohio League. His teams won 19 and tied two out of 32 league and non-league games.

In his first year the Harding team tied with Mansfield and Galion for first place in the league. In 1925, the local boys finished second, losing the championship because of a tie game with Mansfield. Last year they were tied for second place in the standing at the end of the season.

Hold Their Own

Harding High grid teams coached by Sprout held their own and more than broke even with every team in the league with the exception of Galion. The Crawford County eleven won three out of the four games played while he was coach at Harding. But in 1925, when the Sproutmen did clean up on Galion, the score was 42 to 0.

Last season Harding was hard hit by the ineligibility of many of their stars of the preceding year but after a bad start, the team developed into one of the best of the league.

Besides coaching football, Sprout also handled the track squad here this spring and supervised the first inter-class track meet ever held at Harding High.

He also taught mathematics, salesmanship, and was in charge of gym work until the last semester of this school year. Mr. Sprout was well-liked by all students and will be missed in high school circles next year.

Howitzers and Excavators Lead Association Teams

AGAIN WINNERS IN POSTPONED LEAGUE GAMES

Erie Office Defeats Brotherhood of Railway Clerks Outfit

HOWITZERS and Excavators continued to set the pace in the Association last night when they each won their second games of the season. Neither has yet suffered a defeat. The other winner was the Erie Office.

Howitzers rosed out the Legion in the last inning of a thrilling encounter, winning 7 to 6 when they scored four runs in the final frame. With the score standing 5 to 3 against them, Howitzers collected four hits and a walk for the four runs in the seventh stanza. The Legion crew did its best to overtake the leaders in the last of the seventh but succeeded in counting only one tally. It was the second Legion defeat of the season.

Excavators Win

Excavators hit the ball early in the contest against the Erie Switchmen and scored two runs in the first and one in the second inning to win the game. The Switchmen scored their lone run in the last half of the seventh inning when they threatened to tie the count.

Greenland pitched for the Switchmen and L. Medlam did the mound work for the winners.

The Erie Office won its first game of the season last night when it turned in a victory over the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks. The final tally was 7 to 0.

G. Gilmore pitched for the Clerks and Calvin was in the box for the Erie team.

Only one box score was received.

FANS PROTECT HIM

Newark, N. J., June 3—Al Delmont, Newark lightweight, is so popular among local boxing fans that when he is losing, his friends jump into the ring and lend him a helping fist. After Delmont had been knocked down five times here last night in the second round of his bout with Billy Drako, Baltimore import from Germany, a fan leaped into the ring and swung at Drako. A near riot developed when other fans jumped into the ring but police protected Drako and the crowd left the building.

Elyria Richwines to Play Marion Athletics Sunday

The Elyria Richwines, well-known in local baseball circles, will be the next opponent for the Marion Athletics at Lincoln Park Sunday afternoon.

This outfit was here a number of times last year and has proven itself to be one of the best semi-pro aggregations in this vicinity. It is armed with six new professional players this season.

The Marion club, after winning three in a row, last week gave a miserable exhibiton of themselves in the game with the Olds Motors of Toledo, and lost, 10 to 6.

Errors were largely responsible for the defeat although the visitors did have a "Babe Ruth" with them, who clouted home runs galore. The locals have been practicing this week in preparation for Sunday's game and a number of the players will have more practice Saturday afternoon when they play with the Steam Shovel against the Robbins & Myers Co. of Springfield.

The Marion team will take on the Detroit Clowns the following week and will meet the famous Homestead Greys here in July.

The game Sunday will be called at 2:30, with E. C. Mackay, umpire.

CAN'T PROSECUTE

Mandell Can't Be Prosecuted in Adams' Death, Says Attorney

Kansas City, June 3—An investigation into the circumstances surrounding the death of Steve Adams, Chicago boxer, in his fight Wednesday night with Sammy Mandell, lightweight champion, today had revealed no grounds on which Mandell could be prosecuted, according to A. J. Melliott, county attorney here.

Mandell, who left last night for Chicago in company with his manager and an attorney, is prepared to return at the instance of authorities here.

A coroner's inquest will be held today or tomorrow to determine the exact cause of Adam's death.

A good many ideals must wither before the facts; particularly the ideal of making men angelic.

PHONE COMPANY CHANGES NAME TO OHIO ASSOCIATED

Tangible connection between the Ohio Associated Telephone Co., new owner of the Marion County Telephone Co. property, and its customers, was established on June 1, when the name of the new company appeared on the monthly rental account cards for the first time.

The new telephone directory, to be issued July 1, will also bear the name of the Ohio Associated, Manager A. J. Berry said today.

Transfer of ownership and management of the local telephone company to the Ohio Associated took place several weeks ago following confirmation and approval of the sale by the state utilities commission.

The Marion County Telephone Co. will be formally dissolved at a meeting of the directors to be held in the near future.

All Schools Eligible

All high schools in the country were eligible to participate in the contest and several schools in the county took part. At Caledonia High School the freshman class members wrote essays.

The contest was sponsored by the National Thrift Committee in cooperation with the International Benjamin Franklin Society which provided the Franklin medals for the 25 best essays and the four cash awards totaling $500.

Thousands of essays on "Benjamin Franklin's Contribution to American Independence" were written by high school students but only one from each school was eligible for the national contest. James M. Book, chairman of the committee of judges, in announcing the outcome of the contest said:

No Easy Task

"It has been no easy task to make the decision as all the essays were so uniformly excellent that any choice between them was difficult. I am glad the 25 medals are to be awarded for many of those essays richly deserve recognition. I have especially in mind one submitted by a Japanese boy, Susumu Sakamoto, of the McKinley High School, Honolulu."

The conditions of the contest required essays not to exceed 2,000 words and to be prepared by an enrolled student in the high school; also to be read before the high school assembly during National Thrift Week.

One can over-plan; that is, spend so much time planning that the work is neglected.

-o- The New Book -o-

BY FRANCES JENNINGS

A BEAUTIFUL written book with a powerful story of character is "The Lovely Ship," a new novel by Storm Jameson, an English author of rising fame. Storm Jameson has an unique ability to portray character, to delve into the very souls of the men and women she creates, present their problems in a realistic and wholesome fashion, and perfect a story satisfying in its entirety.

"The Lovely Ship" is laid in the '50s, '60s and '70s—a time when the shipbuilding industry was at its height, and the steamship first began to compete with the wooden sailing ship. It is the story of Mary Hansyke, an intelligent, sensible-minded girl of high ideals neglected as a child and matured at an early age. Left to her own devices and the indifferent care of a hardened uncle, by her mother, Charlotte, pathetically irresponsible and selfish but loving withal, Mary develops into womanhood at the age of 15, and although anxious to enter the shipbuilding business in which her uncle is engaged, is persuaded by him to marry a sickly, undesirable, gentleman of wealth. When left a widow at the age of 18, with a small boy dependent upon her care, she becomes a builder of ships in the business left her by her uncle, not even forsaking it when love, in the form of an overwhelming passion, enters her life.

AFTER a period of married happiness, her duties as a woman of business claim her attention, and her husband, whose vanity craves constant and undivided courting, betrays her. It is then that tragedy enters her life when Gerry Hardman, whom she had first loved as a girl, unexpectedly returns, arouses an old love, but, rather than force her to disrespect by forsaking her husband and children, now numbering three, as well as the business to which she is attached, cruelly leaves her again, to her memories—and ships.

Storm Jameson has the canabilities of the majority of the better English writers, being able to present the sensuality and passion necessary to the reality of her novel, without offense. Her style, too, shows the singular regard for detail of a Galsworthy, Dickens or Walpole.

Outstanding personalities are prevalent in all her characters, Mary's sensuous, self-loving mother; the sorely-tried, pathetically solitary woman who is her governess, her tutor, the manager of the shipyards, two of the men who had loved her and been content in the role of spectator, sympathized in Mary's tragedies; her uncle, "half buffoon and half blackguard" but nevertheless in love with his niece; her son, destined to be a gentleman of breeding, of the character his father might have been had he not failed, weakened.

Others of Storm Jameson's books are "Three Kingdoms," the story of another woman of totally different character; "The Pot Boils," and "The Happy Highways." In all of her books are to be found the reality, irony which go to make her books rich reproductions of life.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventures

BY JUDD MORTIMER LEWIS

grandfather was out after night-crawlers again last night and he must have got about a quart. When I had gone down by the rope in his room morning and had went down to get the pail and go out and milk the cow grandfather had put the night-crawlers in an old shoe box, and filled it with dirt and sprinkled it with water so they could have something to eat. I got up to go fishing, and after they had et up all the milk, because when I got out in the kitchen and got the pail the box was setting on the table and the worms was crawling over the sides of the box like anything, some were on the table and some had got off the table onto the floor.

I took the milk pail and run out and never said anything about it, till I heard Grandpa holler, and all the buuch of us knew what it was about and I turned around so sudden the cow got scared and kicked the milk stool so hard it went back of the stable and left me sitting on the floor by the side of the cow, and the floor was not so very clean either, because I clean it every day, and today was Friday, but I guess I was lucky she didn't kick the pail else out from under me because there was left under me was not much.

I went in my mother and ant Sarah's eating any breafast because when I thought of them worms and their stummicks. I never had my stummick turned. I expect it turns over so that whatever they send down to it in it and they have to wait for it to come back. Stummicks are funny things when you get to thinking about them, which isn't very polite.

Nobody was exempt today, but we all got out at noon. Younise spoke a piece about education and said that an education which did not teach you to be kind to everyone was not worth having. Then the teacher asted Feeble what she thought about it and said it was a beautiful thought, and then she slapped the Lost Bag of Tripe in the mouth because she said he pinched her

Younise spoke a piece about education

He said he never. I don't believe he did. After a while it was all over and the teacher said to go out quietly and we went poring out and met the other rooms at the head of the stairs and then we all went out like an earthquake. We spent the rest of the day at Big Creek and didn't get home till it was time for the cows.

I am glad I am living. Jubilee too.

Peter's Adventures

A Story for Boys and Girls

BY FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

As Blind as a Mole

"How do I move my eyes?" The little creature repeated Peter's question and then he chuckled. "You wouldn't know any more about it if I had told you," said he. "That is a thing that only one of my own kind could understand."

"But who are you, anyhow?" the boy was becoming more and more puzzled. "Come out in the open where I can see you." Then as the creature began to move toward him he gave an astonished cry.

"Good gracious me! Why, you have real human hands with five fingers on each and their palms are pink—just like me!"

"Human hands like yours? Nonsense, my dear sir! Look closer!" Thereupon he held up one of his front feet for Peter to examine. "Do you mean to say that you have webbed fingers instead of fingers, or such fine, long nails for digging? Watch me make the dirt fly." And using the leaves to right and left, the mysterious little man commenced digging about in circles as fast as he could go, wriggling his long nose over the ground before him.

"Ah! here is a soft spot to begin," he cried he, and although the ground was hard and bare, in a very short time indeed he had scraped a deep little groove in the earth.

"There, is that for a start?" asked the little fellow, stopping to rest. "It feels all right. How does it look?"

"Quite right!" declared Peter. "But why do you ask me that? Can't you see yourself?"

"No," said the fellow. "To tell you the truth, I can't—that is, not well. My eyes are not to be depended upon at all. If it was not for my ears and nose I don't know what I should do. They say as a hat,' indeed. A bat can see, they should say, 'As blind as a mole.' But, after all, when one spends his life underneath the ground one doesn't have much real use for eyes."

"Ha! Now I know who you are. You gave it away."

"What are you talking about, Two-Toes?" demanded the fellow. "I have not anything to give away and I don't know that you would get it if I had. I can eat all that I can grab—never much left over for anyone else."

"Oh, I am not talking about food. I mean your secret. You are a Mole!" declared Peter.

"Right-o, and it is about time you guessed it. If you had been real bright you would have known the minute you saw my nose, and how in this world you could ever mistake my claws I don't know. A House Mouse! I can't get over that! Say, don't you wish you could wear a coat like mine? It is as smooth as an ivy leaf. Why, do you know, I can dig all day, even after a rainstorm, when the earth is moist, and never have a bit of mud on it when I get through? Mud doesn't stick. It slides right off. Once in a while my hands do get dirty, but I don't mind that."

PUT UP YOUR DUKES, SOCKO
HE KEEPS IN FORM FOR HIS PICTURES BY BOXING EVERY AFTERNOON WITH HIS PET MONKEY
TELL ME MORE OF YOUR PAST LIFE - YOU INTEREST ME STRANGELY EVER SINCE I CAN REMEMBER, I'VE BEEN A FED-UP WITH THE GIRLS

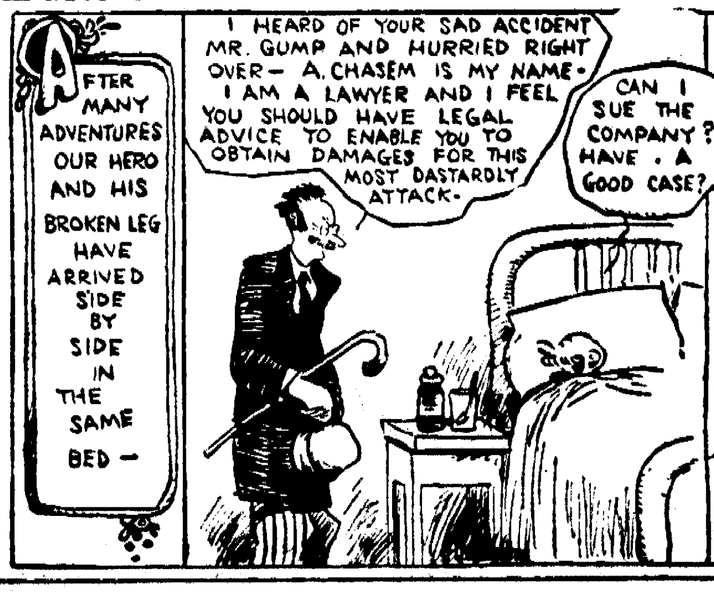
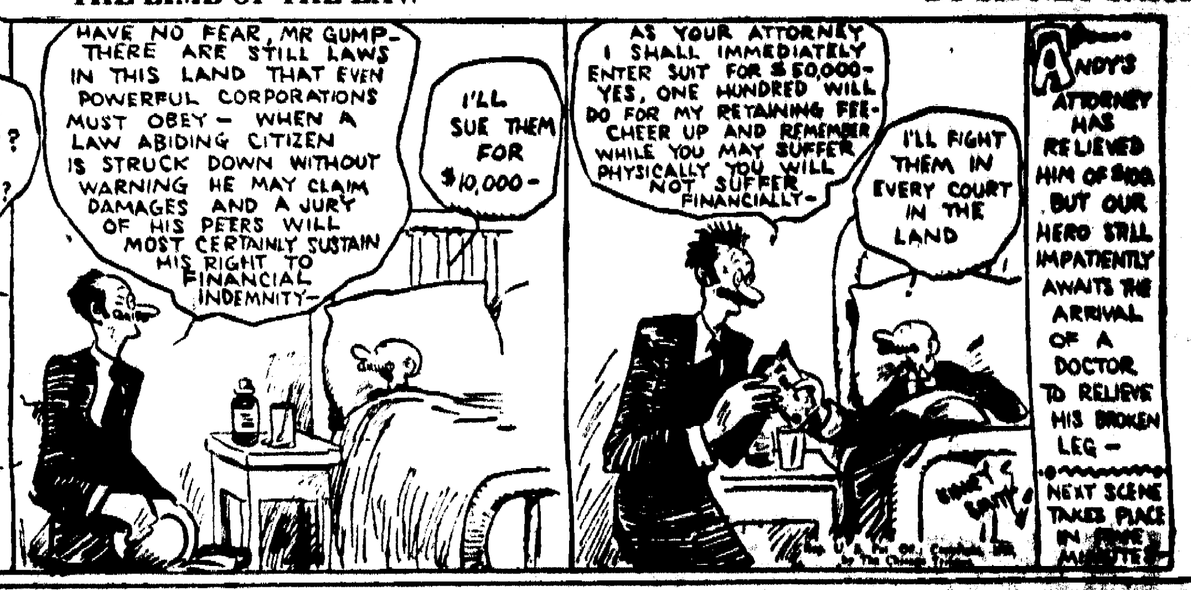
THE GUMPS



AFTER MANY ADVENTURES OUR HERO AND HIS BROKEN LEG HAVE ARRIVED SIDE BY SIDE IN THE SAME BED —
I HEARD OF YOUR SAD ACCIDENT MR. GUMP AND HURRIED RIGHT OVER — A. CHASEM IS MY NAME. I AM A LAWYER AND I FEEL YOU SHOULD HAVE LEGAL ADVICE TO ENABLE YOU TO OBTAIN DAMAGES FOR THIS MOST DASTARDLY ATTACK.
CAN I SUE THE COMPANY? HAVE A GOOD CASE?

THE LIMB OF THE LAW

BY SIDNEY SMITH



HAVE NO FEAR, MR GUMP — THERE ARE STILL LAWS IN THIS LAND THAT EVEN POWERFUL CORPORATIONS MUST OBEY — WHEN A LAW ABIDING CITIZEN IS STRUCK DOWN WITHOUT WARNING HE MAY CLAIM DAMAGES AND A JURY OF HIS PEERS WILL MOST CERTAINLY SUSTAIN HIS RIGHT TO FINANCIAL INDEMNITY —
I'LL SUE THEM FOR $10,000 —
AS YOUR ATTORNEY I SHALL IMMEDIATELY ENTER SUIT FOR $50,000 — YES, ONE HUNDRED WILL DO FOR MY RETAINING FEE — CHEER UP AND REMEMBER WHILE YOU MAY SUFFER PHYSICALLY YOU WILL NOT SUFFER FINANCIALLY — I'LL FIGHT THEM IN EVERY COURT IN THE LAND
ANDY'S ATTORNEY HAS RELIEVED HIM OF $100. BUT OUR HERO STILL IMPATIENTLY AWAITS THE ARRIVAL OF A DOCTOR TO RELIEVE HIS BROKEN LEG —

RS FIGHT MMEDIATE RELIEF

Claim Stricken ot Wait for Con- ional Action

facing the people of the flood area cannot be helped six months hence," he said. "It must be considered now or it may be too late. I am disappointed that no action for financial relief is proposed by the leaders of this conference."

With the task of perfecting an organization completed, committees were studying the problem today with a view to submitting several proposals to the delegates for final action.

One proposal, calling upon the president to appoint a committee of engineers, business men, economists and agricultural experts to confer with army engineers, now in charge of the flood control and report their findings to the president and congress, was being widely supported.

It was introduced by Rep. Porter, Republican, Pennsylvania, one of the administration leaders in the house and was regarded as representing the president's attitude.

"We hope to work out a practicable proposal behind which all of us can stand united at the next session of congress," Senator Watson, Republican, Ind., chairman of the resolutions committee declared today.

"Several plans are under discussion but we hope to agree upon one."

The 27 states represented at the conference were virtually unanimous in agreeing the problem must be handled by the federal government.

"Louisiana cannot afford to pay for a new levee system," said Gov. John E. Martineau. "The problem affects the entire country, directly or indirectly, and should be solved by the federal government."

SAYS LINDBERGH PAVED WAY FOR LEGIONNAIRES

10 Delegates Expected To Represent Bird-McGinnis Post at Paris

That the now historic New York to Paris non-stop flight of Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh has been a large factor in paving the way for a warm reception to legionnaires attending the Paris convention is the word received here today by L. Don Jones, commander of Bird-McGinnis Post, No. 162, American Legion, from Jim Barton, national adjutant of the legion.

At least 10 persons from Marion will attend the Paris meeting, according to Mr. Jones. Five of that number have already completed plans for the trip, he announced.

According to the communication received today by Mr. Jones, Mr. Barton has just returned from an inspection visit to Paris. He states he is highly pleased with preparations that have been made by the French to welcome American delegates.

"A most amicable feeling exists between the French and American peoples at the present time," Mr. Barton says, "due in a large measure to the wonderful achievement of Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh."

New York, June 3—Rebuffed in their first attempt in a month or more to turn the market downward, the bears returned to their task today, and, on the whole, their efforts brought a greater measure of success than in yesterday's hectic market.

Reports of increasing unemployment in important industrial and manufacturing sections of the country, coupled with a decline in the mill operations of steel, equipment and some of the motor companies, encouraged the professionals in their campaign for lower prices, and a huge volume of speculative shares was thrown on the market. The set-back extended to a wide range of industrial shares like steel and General Electric which refused to bend under yesterday's attack, and which had already given a new "demonstration" in the first hour today.

Selling orders originated in large volume in some of the commission houses which had been enthusiastically bullish since the turn of the year, and which according to all accounts have followed their purchases with a generous springling of stop-loss orders. Regardless of the long-range future of stock prices, the impression has been gaining headway in Wall Street that the market was due for a technical reaction following such a long period of almost uninterrupted advance.

As in the preceding session, stock offerings were quickly absorbed at concessions from Thursday's close. Steel's decline to 124 provided new opportunities for acquiring the stock in investment quarters.

ROAD PROGRAM IN COUNTY NOW IS UNDER WAY

Surveyor Hopes To Eventually Eliminate Gravel Highways, He Says

After having been delayed several weeks by unfavorable weather conditions, Marion County's program of road improvement and repair projects planned for the summer is now under way with prospects of satisfactory progress during the next few months, County Surveyor Cecil R. Leavens said today.

Included in the work started this week is resurfacing and repair of the county's gravel roads, practically all of which were impassable during the greater part of last winter. Two trucks were started yesterday hauling fine stone screenings which are to be spread on the gravel thoroughfares.

Gravel roads will eventually become a thing of the past in Marion County, Leavens said. There are 84 miles of this type of roadways in the county and it is extremely difficult and expensive to keep them in serviceable condition because of the poor quality of gravel available in this locality, the surveyor says.

Hope for Elimination

Because of this situation, it is planned to gradually eliminate all of the gravel roads and construct more satisfactory substitutes. Several years will be required to complete this undertaking. In the meantime stone screenings will be used to keep the thoroughfares in the best condition possible.

Hauling of material to be used in the surface treatment of the county's 81 miles of improved roads also was resumed this week after weather conditions had forced suspension of the work about two weeks ago.

Part of the surface treating will be done by contractors and part by the county. This work is scheduled for completion by Sept. 1.

Contracts Awarded

Contracts have been awarded for several new road construction projects but work on only one is in progress. The firm of Molloy & Seckle started several days ago placing the top surface on Madison-av and the east end of Fairground-st and if weather conditions do not interfere the improvement is to be completed within 30 days.

Molloy & Seckle also have the contracts for three other road improvements which are to be started soon.

Reconstruction of bridges damaged during the heavy rainfall several weeks ago is progressing rapidly and the work probably will be completed within two weeks, the county surveyor said today.

Three bridges are under repair, one on the Winnemac-pk, south of LaRue, another on the county line southwest of LaRue, and the third on the Meeker-Agosta-rd, a short distance south of Meeker.

Happiest people are those who do what they like and somebody decides to pay them for it.

WILL ARRAIGN NINTH ARRESTED IN FARM THEFTS

Cecil Holcomb of Owens To Appear in Municipal Court June 6

Cecil Holcomb of Owens, the ninth man arrested in connection with numerous farm robberies staged in Marion County during the last year, will be arraigned in Municipal Court at 10 o'clock the morning of June 6 on a grand larceny charge filed against him yesterday by Sheriff James A. Deal.

The affidavit accuses Holcomb of having been implicated in the theft of sheep from the farm of James B. Guthery, Feb. 20. Judge Martin fixed Holcomb's bond at $3,500.

Should Holcomb be bound over to the grand jury, his case probably will not come up for trial until next fall, which means that he will spend the entire summer in the county jail should he be unable to furnish bond.

Denies Any Part

Holcomb has denied having had any part in the robberies, although officers say that he is accused by others under indictment.

Proceedings in connection with the cases of the eight other men indicted as alleged members of the robbery ring are due to reach a definite conclusion next week. Six have either pleaded guilty or have been tried and found guilty, leaving only two cases to be disposed of.

Paul Bird, one of the two has indicated that he will plead guilty Monday and Clyde Rogers is expected to follow the same course, although there is a possibility that he may decide to stand trial, attorneys state.

Sentences are not expected to be pronounced on any of the eight until after the cases of Bird and Rogers have been decided.

$3,252.60 PAID BY MARION FOR COMPENSATION

County Auditor Requests School Officials To File Report on Employes

In compliance with instructions recently received from state headquarters, notices are being sent out from the office of County Auditor Thomas today to clerks of all municipalities, townships and school districts of the county requesting them to file reports on which the annual workmen's compensation premiums are to be based.

All officials and employes in public service in the county are insured under provisions of the workmen's compensation law and premiums paid to the state are based upon a percentage of the payrolls each year.

In 1926 the premium payments were as follows:

Townships $117.88; school districts $503.84; municipalities $3,288.64; county $991.80.

The city of Marion paid $3,252.60, this being the largest on the list. The smallest premium paid by any municipality was assessed against the village of Morral, the amount being 69 cents.

Pleasant Smallest

Green Camp township had the largest township assessment with a premium payment of $17.39 and Pleasant Township paid the smallest, $1.25.
